In wake of resignations

Expanded role assigned Agnew

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking to put his White House in order, President Nixon has assigned Vice President Spiro T. Agnew an expanded role in the formulation of domestic policy, it was learned today.

At an hour-long meeting Tuesday, Nixon assigned Agnew to a new position as vice chairman of the Domestic Council at the White House.

Although this will involve the vice president more deeply in policy deliberations on the domestic front, sources said he was in no way taking on the functions of John D. Ehrlichman, domestic policy assistant who resigned Monday.

Part of Agnew's new duties, it was said, would involve liaison work with governors and local officials, putting him back in a field from which he was removed in Nixon's second-term reorganization.

Agnew's new role came to light shortly before former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, a potential rival for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, announced in Houston his switch from the Democratic to Republican party.

A restructuring of the White House staff, made necessary by the resignations of Ehrlichman and chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, was the subject of presidential discussions Tuesday with Agnew and at a 30-minute Cabinet meeting.

"It's a meeting that has to be seen as important," a White House source said. "We can assume that the subject dealt with the future more than such things as Watergate."

A participant in the Cabinet meeting said Kenneth R. Cole, executive director of the Domestic Council, will take over some of the duties handled by Ehrlichman and eventually may replace him.

It was also reported that Stephen B. Bull, assistant to the President, has taken on added duties in short-term scheduling and paper flow. It is not considered likely that he will replace Haldeman — but rather that the chief of staff's duties may be taken over in part by the Office of Management and Budget.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were seen leaving the White House Tuesday carrying stacks of documents, even as the FBI mounted a 'round-the-clock guard in offices containing Watergate-related files.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the guard was posted "to physically protect the files to make sure that access and removal of any files were supervised in accordance with very strict procedure." He said FBI agents checked everything removed by the two resigned aides.

White House sources said that before Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned, they inspected government files, seeking documentation for their claims of innocence. The search apparently resulted from news accounts that fired presidential Counsel John W. Dean III was prepared to give investigators documents relating to an alleged White House coverup of Watergate.

Meanwhile, The New York Times today quoted sources as saying six former high-level figures are expected to be indicted in connection with the alleged coverup.

The Times identified the six as Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, deputy Nixon campaign director, John Stuart Magruder, and Frederick C. LaRue, a special assistant to Mitchell when the latter was Nixon's campaign chief.

Relations jeopardized

Watergate worrying Brezhnev?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

For a communist party chief in a major holiday appearance, Leonid I. Brezhnev's May address was a model of brevity and restraint.

The harshness toward the United States that more often than not marks Soviet pronouncements on such occasions was noticeably missing.

The whole Brezhnev performance of late, in fact, carries a hint of worry, that the manifold troubles of the Nixon administration, including the Watergate explosion, will have some unfavorable impact on development of better Soviet-U.S. relations.

Unquestionably the Tass news agency has been pouring out thousands of words on the scandal in Washington for the edification of the Kremlin and its ministries, but nothing of it has appeared in the Soviet press. Evidently the decision from on high was to ignore it.

In other days and other circumstances, the troubles of the United States would have looked finger-lickin' good to the communist bloc. Here was the American image, already badly hurt by Vietnam, damaged anew by political scandal, continuing U.S. bombing in Cambodia and soaring inflation, among other troubles.

Soviet politicians, in fact, might be anticipating an advantageous erosion of European confidence in the United States. Perhaps there is pressure on Brezhnev to take advantage of this, but apparently he wants to avoid any overt move that might endanger his most important goal — development of trade and scientific-technical relations with the United States for the benefit of the Soviet economy.

The gingerly Moscow approach could reflect worry that it wouldn't take much to upset the process of improving relations — perhaps even to prevent Brezhnev's planned visit to the United States next month.

Brezhnev knows that Washington remains wary of Soviet aims in Europe. Secretary of State William P. Rogers noted in a speech April 23 that despite progress in reducing tension, the competitive nature of nations remains a fact of life and there still are "sound military reasons for maintaining our forces in Europe."

Tightening of wage-price controls seen

By BILL NEIKIRK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials say some tightening of Phase 3 wage-price controls appears likely following President Nixon's meeting today with top economic advisers.

Some officials hinted at stronger enforcement moves to halt the galloping inflation. But Nixon advisers in recent days have ruled out any new wage-price freeze and rigid, mandatory controls.

The President called in key advisers after being granted another year of wage-price-control authority.

Scheduled to attend the meeting were Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Budget Director Roy Ash, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns.

Nixon also scheduled a session with the Labor-Management Advisory Committee, a panel of five labor and five business leaders named to advise him on wage-price controls.

Although prices have been increasing in recent months, at the fastest rate in 22 years, Nixon has resisted stepping in with strong new wage-price controls to combat the new burst of inflation.

His advisers say that the kind of inflation the nation is experiencing cannot be affected by controls.

Much of the general price rise has been caused by price boosts in food, energy, and internationally traded commodities affected by the dollar devaluation, and short supplies of some goods, his advisers have said.

"Controls are not an appropriate way to deal with supply shortages," said William Walker, general counsel for the Council of Living Council. "We cannot repeal the law of supply and demand."

Walker and Edgar Felder, assistant secretary of the Treasury for economic policy, said the nation is undergoing a price purge that should, for the most part, be over by the middle of the year.

Congress considered, but rejected, a new freeze, rent controls, and price rollbacks when it extended the President's power to control wages and prices for another year, to April 30, 1974.

To handle Watergate

Special prosecutor sought by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) —

In an action that critics later termed a "vote of no confidence" in President Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal, the Senate has urged appointment of a special prosecutor free of any hint of White House interference.

Only a handful of senators were present at noon Tuesday when Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., asked for and received unanimous consent to adopt his resolution calling on Nixon to nominate an independent prosecutor and send his name to the Senate for confirmation.

Late in the afternoon, other senators, mostly Republicans, tried and failed to reverse that voice vote and denounced Percy's speedy action as "contemptible," and "low-life politics," and "a very dirty trick."

Percy refused to withdraw his resolution or to permit the vote to be reconsidered without a promise of a specific hour for a roll-call vote on the issue. He volunteered to bring up the matter again today.

The Senate action was seen as intensifying pressure on Atty. Gen.-designate Elliot L. Richardson to exercise the option given him by Nixon to name a special prosecutor to oversee the investigation.

Outraged Senate Republicans said they would try again to get the resolution — which has no force of law — withdrawn.

The effect of it is to harass and condemn the President of the United States," said Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., in a speech in which he repeatedly denounced the Percy move.

"Less than 24 hours after the President made his address to the nation, action was taken which will be interpreted as a vote of no confidence in the President of the United States," said Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H.

"It was the worst slap in the face to the President that I can conceive of," Cotton said.

Percy said he had tried to check the issue with leaders of both sides of the aisle, and added: "I have made no attempt to railroad something through."

There were no objections when Percy asked his resolution be adopted by unanimous consent. This procedure frequently is used for consideration of resolutions.

Of Watergate-papers links

Full disclosure sought

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Defense attorneys in the Pentagon papers trial, accusing former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman of trying to bribe the trial judge, have demanded that any Watergate or White House links to the trial be made public.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, rejected on Tuesday a government request to keep from the press further developments in a continuing court-ordered probe. He said he would make public any documents relevant to the trial.

Attorneys for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo asked for dismissal of the indictments against them after the government revealed that Ehrlichman knew two Watergate conspirators had burglarized the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

The defense also cited an Ehrlichman contact with Byrne on April 5 at the Western White House where Byrne said earlier he was told he was in line for a high "future assignment in government," reportedly the directorship of the FBI.

Although Byrne said he had refused to consider any offer until after the trial, the defense motion called it "possibly an attempt to offer a bribe to the court—an attempt made in the virtual presence of the President of the United States which was frustrated only because the judge refused to listen to the offer."

Ellsberg and Russo are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in the copying of the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war, which Ellsberg subsequently leaked to the press in 1971.

Arguing against a secrecy rule, defense attorney Leonard Boudin said the court's probe of Watergate connections had been aided by publicity.

He cited a published story in the Washington Evening Star-News as saying one of the Watergate conspirators billed the White House for four hours' work the day of the break-in at Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

The story said Watergate prosecutors have airline tickets showing two of the conspirators were in Los Angeles at the time of the break-in.

'Image like Humpty Dumpty'

Nixon seeks to restore credibility

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House credibility has become a bit like Humpty Dumpty. But President Nixon and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler hope to do better than the king's horses and men in putting it together again.

That restoration job was in order because apparent in recent days when:

• Vice President Spiro T. Agnew volunteered that he had "full confidence in the integrity of the President."

• Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the former Republican national chairman, declared: "Right now the credibility of the administration is zilch, zero."

• Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus told reporters about receiving an "honest statement from the President," unconsciously, no doubt, inserting a reference to honesty that, in normal circumstances, would have been assumed.

Both Nixon and Ziegler, acutely conscious of a need to restore public faith in both the integrity and credibility of the White House, have paid tribute this week to the role of the press in bringing to light hidden facts about last year's Watergate burglary and subsequent coverup.

Both men, in their own way, offered apologies for past White House denunciations of investigative reporting of the Watergate case.

Significantly, Ziegler was the only surviving White House assistant, following three resignations, directly defended by Nixon in his Monday night television-radio address on Watergate. Reporting that he had been fed lies about the case by trusted associates, Nixon said:

"The comments I made during this period, and the comments made by my press secretary on my behalf, were based on the information provided to us at the time we made those comments."

Ziegler, always protective of his own reputation for honest dealings, was asked Tuesday if he would apologize to The Washington Post for harsh attacks on that newspaper's Watergate reporting last October. His reply:

"I would be, I think, remiss if I did not say that mistakes were made during this period between the Watergate burglary and Nixon's speech in terms of comments that were made, perhaps. I would say that I was overenthusiastic at that time in my comments about the Post, particularly if you look at it in the context of the developments that have taken place . . .

"In thinking of it at this point in time, I would apologize to the Post."

Ziegler added an apology to Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward. Asked to comment on one of their articles last Oct. 16, he had said, "I will not dignify with comment stories based on hearsay, character assassination, innuendo, guilty by association."

Action near on Vietnam vets' bonuses

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Legislature was expected to complete action today on a Vietnam bonus law that will provide payments of $100 to $600 for about 143,000 veterans.

The program will cost taxpayers from $85 to $90 million over the next 20 years.

The law continues a practice of paying state bonuses to servicemen who have served during major overseas wars. Similar bonuses were paid after World War I, World War II and the Korean War.

It's expected to be about four months before application forms are ready and six months before bonuses can be paid. The bonuses will be tax free.

The bonus bill drew only one negative vote in its tour through the legislature, that by Rep. James Ulland, R-Duluth.

It passed the Senate Tuesday, 62-0, and returned to the House for concurrence with amended language. Rep. Donald Samuelson, DFL-Brainerd, the House sponsor, said he expected to adopt the Senate language.

Bonuses will be paid to all Minnesota servicemen who served during the Vietnam era; whether or not they served in the Vietnam theater.

Those who did not serve in Vietnam will get a maximum of $300; those who earned the Vietnam expeditionary medal or the Vietnam service medal will get a maximum of $600. Survivors of the 1,024 Min-nesotans killed in Vietnam will get payments of $1,000.

Former prisoners of war and families of men missing in action also will get $1,000 bonuses.

The outside dates of eligibility are July 1, 1958, and July 27, 1973. Any veteran who received the Vietnam expeditionary or service medals will get $300 plus $15 a month for each month of service between those dates. The maximum is $600.

Other veterans of non-Vietnam service will get $15 a month for service between Aug. 5, 1964, and Jan. 27, 1973. The maximum is $300 and the minimum is $100.

The program will be under the direction of Elmer Childress, the state commissioner of veterans affairs. A board of review will be established to screen claims.

Bonus payments are limited to Minnesota residents, or those who were legal residents when they entered service. Professional or long-term servicemen who are still on active duty also are eligible.

Cutbacks ordered

$395.4 million OKed for higher education

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved a $395.4 million package for higher education Tuesday night but ordered cutbacks in programs at Waseca and Crookston.

The bill calls for closing the University of Minnesota's Waseca Technical School by Jan. 1, 1975, and orders a similar school at Crookston to operate within existing facilities.

The closing of the Waseca school has been protested by agribusiness interests in southern Minnesota. It's been argued that the two-year school is turning out graduates widely sought in the agribusiness field.

Instead of the $1.6 million requested for Waseca by Gov. Wendell Anderson, the committee allocated only $939,000.

An attempt to restore the cutback was defeated on a 10-9 vote. A similar vote to allow expansion of the Crookston program resulted in a 9-9 tie.

Sen. Jack Davies, DFL-Minneapolis, had spearheaded efforts to trim the two-year schools, contending it was a mistake to open them two years ago in the face of declining college enrollments.

Coupled with a school aid program of $1.2 billion, the Senate spending package for education for the next two years would total $1.67 billion.

Both of the education money bills are subject to compromise with House versions. The House bills do not call for curtailment of the Waseca and Crookston technical schools.

Committee tables bill on pari-mutuel betting

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The subject of pari-mutuel betting in Minnesota has been assigned once again to an interim study by legislative committees.

A bill to set up a state racing commission and allow pari-mutuel betting was tabled in the House Government Operations Committee Tuesday night.

Similar action on a Senate bill is expected today, moving the bill from the Senate Rules Committee back to the Labor and Commerce Committee for the interim.

The House action calls for joint hearings on the subject by two different committees during the interim. Pari-mutuel betting has been assigned to interim study in several past sessions.

The betting bill had been sponsored by Sen. Jack Kleinbaum, DFL-St. Cloud, and Rep. Bernard Brinkman, DFL-Richmond.

In other legislative action Tuesday:

- Two ranking Senate DFLers blocked an attempt to secure medical testimony on a bill that would impose a new set of restrictions on abortion.
- The bill won approval by the Judiciary Committee last Friday without any outside testimony, and was sent to the Rules Committee. Sen. David Schaaf, DFL-Fridley, argued that "not one single doctor was allowed to testify" and asked that the bill be referred to the Health, Welfare and Corrections Committee.

But a motion to that effect was defeated 2-1. "No" votes came from Sens. Alec Olson, DFL-Willmar, the Senate's presiding officer, and Baldy Hansen, DFL-Austin, chairman of the Labor and Commerce Committee.

The subcommittee then recommended that the bill be returned to the floor by the Rules Committee, which was to meet on that question today.

Hearing stalled on lake dumping

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A state hearing on Reserve Mining Co.'s dumping of taconite tailings into Lake Superior might be delayed because of a federal court order, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) Director Grant J. Merritt said Tuesday.

The state hearing, scheduled for June 18, could take several weeks, Merritt said.

The hearing deals with granting Reserve a variance from meeting state water quality regulations and setting standards for its discharges into the lake.

U.S. District Court Judge Miles Lord has granted a motion by Reserve that the PCA be added as a co-plaintiff in the case brought by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, the states of Wisconsin and Michigan, and environmental groups. The federal trial may start about July 1.

Lord's order said the PCA belonged in the case to avoid the possibility Reserve might be told to do one thing by the state and another by the court, but the order said nothing that would interfere with the state hearing.

Merritt said he was confident the state would retain its independent jurisdiction in the case, allowing the hearing to be held. However, he said conflict with the federal trial could delay the hearing.

Merritt said the issues in the two cases are different. The federal suit must prove Reserve is polluting the lake while the Minnesota State Supreme Court has already ruled that the company's discharge of taconite tailings into the lake is intolerable, he said.

$500,000 shipment of diamonds taken at Kennedy Airport

NEW YORK (AP) — Three gunmen made off with a $500,000 shipment of diamonds after holding up the Air India cargo warehouse at Kennedy airport Monday night, police reported.

"We know you got the diamonds in this afternoon, and we want them," said gunmen as they forced the warehouse supervisor to hand over envelopes from the safe.

The three left after binding the supervisor and six other employees with handcuffs and rope and taking their wallets, police said.

It was not known immediately where the diamonds came from or who owned them.

Real estate school takes ruling to court

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin School of Real Estate Inc., Milwaukee, went to court Monday in an effort to enjoin the state Real Estate Examining Board from backing a bill which would allow only public schools to teach real estate handling.

The Dane County Circuit Court complaint said the board was acting in excess of its authority when its members testified in favor of the bill in the legislature April 18.

It said there is no basis for the state to differentiate between the schools and stated it has offered instruction for prospective real estate salesmen and brokers for 15 years.

The bill would restrict courses in real estate handling to state universities, the vocational technical and adult education schools, or schools fully accredited by the North Central Association of colleges, universities and secondary schools.

BRUCKNER CYCLE SET FOR VIENNA

VIENNA (AP) — In honor of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Anton Bruckner on Sept. 4 next year, the 1974 Vienna Festival will offer all his symphonies.

Also planned for September 1974 are three Bruckner memorial concerts: at the Piaristenkirche in Vienna, in the monastery of St. Florian, where Bruckner served as organist, and in the Cathedral of Linz, capital of Upper Austria, the province in which Bruckner was born in the town of Ansfelden.

Blair High sets summer school program

BLAIR, Wis. — The summer school session will begin at Blair High School on June 11 and will run through July 20. Classes will begin at 8:45 a.m. and conclude each day at noon. Most classes will be one and one-half hours in length.

Classes to be offered this year include Introduction to Reading, Developmental Reading, Language Arts, Developmental Arithmetic, Enriched Science, Art, Crafts, Typing, Outdoor Experiences, Driver's Education and Instrumental Music. The summer school program will be coordinated with the recreation program conducted by Gerald Blaha.

A few classes originally planned will not be offered due to a lack of enrollment. These include Head Start, Aerospace and Sports, Aquatic Biology, and the Dramatics Workshop.

A complete schedule of classes, teachers and times will be published in the Blair Press. Bus transportation will be provided for those students who live in rural areas of the district.

Parents or students having questions concerning the program may contact Ronald McDonah at the high school or at his home.

Jean Stapleton works for unity

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jean Stapleton, the television wife of Archie Bunker, helped exhibit the new "We're All in One Family" mobile billboard here Tuesday.

The poster portrays "All in the Family" show characters Archie and Edith Bunker standing side by side with a young black neighbor, Lionel. The text reads: "We're All in One Family... Let's Act Like It!"

The poster was designed by the Philadelphia Human Relations Commission. Chairman Clarence Farmer presented Miss Stapleton with a citation saluting the show for "exposing the falsity, silliness and dangers of unthinking prejudice...."

Ettrick man charged after Blair crash

BLAIR, Wis. (Special) — A 42-year-old rural Ettrick man has been charged with driving too fast for conditions following a car-truck accident here this morning, on Highway 95 in Blair.

James E. Brynildson, Ettrick, Wis., has been scheduled to appear in Trempealeau County Traffic Court, Whitehall, at 9 a.m. May 15.

He currently is a patient at Tri-County Memorial Hospital, Whitehall, listed in good condition, with minor injuries.

Driver of the truck, Darrell O. Schroeder, Caledonia, Minn., was not injured.

The Trempealeau County Sheriff's office reported that the vehicles collided as Brynildson was traveling south in a 1972 model two-door and Schroeder was headed north in a 1969 model truck.

No damage estimates were available. Damage to the truck was confined to its rear tire and wheel.

The sheriff's office was notified at 6:08 a.m. today.

Two charged with breaking and entering

ALMA, Wis. — Two Minnesota men were charged with breaking and entering when they appeared Tuesday before Judge Gary Schlosstein in Buffalo County Court here.

The accused are Steven Oevering, 18, Stockton, Minn., and Richard King, 20, Winona.

Judge Schlosstein set bond on each at $1,000 cash or $10,000 security and ordered that both receive court-appointed attorneys.

J. V. Whelan, Mondovi, Wis., will represent both defendants in the matter. Buffalo County District Attorney Roger Hartman is the prosecutor.

The men have been charged with entering the Club Four Mile tavern, in Bluff Siding, town of Buffalo.

They were apprehended at the scene about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday by the Buffalo County Sheriff's department with assistance from the Winona Police Department.

Fillmore landfill to be discussed by PCA, board

PRESTON, Minn. — The Fillmore County landfill problem will be discussed by the Fillmore County Board of Commissioners and members of the Pollution Control Agency (PCA) May 14 in Minneapolis.

Robert Thompson, Lanesboro, chairman of the Fillmore County Board of Commissioners, will once more request that the operation of the present burning dumps be continued with some modifications.

He said he does not feel that a landfill is the answer for Fillmore County since the area is completely underlain by limestone. A landfill in the county will endanger the water table, he contends.

Fillmore County has been unsuccessful in its efforts to find a landfill site.

The only PCA-approved landfill site in the county, the presently-closed Ironwood site near Spring Valley, has been sold. Formerly the property of Kenneth Hurland, the new owners are Richard Grate and Ralph Kunz, Grand Meadow, and Duane Grate, Spring Valley.

The site was at one time under consideration as a county landfill but negotiations by the county were terminated and the site was closed.

Thompson contends that there is nothing wrong with open burning and that air pollution is not a big problem in Fillmore County.

Stolen auto recovered in Buffalo County

BLUFF SIDING, Wis. — A 1966 Pontiac, which was stolen Saturday night at Mondovi, Wis., was recovered here this morning by the Buffalo County Sheriff's office.

The automobile, owned by Berger's Auto Body, Mondovi, was found parked in the parking lot of George's Liquor Store, Fountain City, Wis.

Buffalo County Sheriff Myron Hoch said the car was stolen about 10:30 p.m. Saturday while it was running on Main Street in Mondovi.

River crest here set at 10.5 feet Sunday

Winona's portion of the Mississippi River is expected to crest at a safe below-flood level of 10.5 feet sometime Sunday.

The National Weather Service predicted La Crosse and Durand, Wis., both would crest below or at their flood stages. The Mississippi is to hit 10 feet next Monday, compared with the 12-foot flood stage at La Crosse, and the Chippewa was to hit its 11-foot flood stage at Durand early Thursday.

WINONA'S flood stage is 13 feet.

Apparently safe from any flooding is Neillsville, Wis., where the Black River is expected to crest at 13 feet tonight. Flood stage is 18 feet.

Crests over flood stage were predicted for the Zumbro River at Theilman, Minn., at 45 feet tonight, compared with a 38-foot flood stage; 8.5 feet on the Trempealeau at Dodge Lake Thursday, compared with flood stage at 7 feet, and 13 feet at Galesville, Wis., Saturday along the Black River, where 12 feet is flood stage.

The Root River was to crest at 16 feet Thursday morning at Houston, Minn., where 15 feet is flood stage, and at 49 feet at Hokah, Minn., that afternoon, where flood stage is 47 feet.

The Rochester district office of the Minnesota Department of Highways this morning reported that, with one exception, no serious problems had been posed today by the heavy rains and high water.

Water spreading out from the Zumbro River had closed Highway 63 at Zumbro Falls, Minn., the department reported, but two other highways that had been closed Tuesday were open today.

THEY ARE Highway 52 between Rochester and the Twin Cities and Highway 74 in the Elba-Beaver area.

The office said that there were numerous mudslides throughout the area but that none had caused extended road closings.

State maintenance crews were called out Tuesday night to clear away a mudslide on Highway 61-14 near Lamolite, then returned when another slide at 2:30 a.m. today covered both southbound lanes of traffic.

The second slide was cleaned off within a few hours and both traffic lanes were open this morning.

About six to eight inches of water covered Highway 63 near the Zumbro River bridge north of Rochester this morning and prompted the road closing.

Francis Benedett, maintenance supervisor in the Winona County highway department, returned at midmorning from an inspection tour of county roads and highways and reported no new serious developments, but observed that if rain were to continue, problems could arise.

A mudslide on CSAH 15 near Homer was cleared away Tuesday afternoon, Benedett reported, and a number of small slides, mostly into ditches, were seen this morning.

HE SAID, however, that there were no road closings because of slides or water.

Whitewater State Park has been closed to all camping because of wet grounds.

Park crews removed the last camper vehicle Tuesday morning and the camp grounds, golf course and picnic area will be closed until further notice.

Donald Jueneman, manager of the golf course, said the grounds are the wettest they have been in 20 years.

City planners will review subdivision plat

The presentation of the final plat for Pleasant Properties, a subdivision off CSAH 17, Pleasant Valley Road, in Homer Township, is the only item currently on the agenda of the Winona City Planning Commission for its Thursday evening meeting at city hall, according to Charles Dillerud, city planning director and secretary to the commission.

The proposed subdivision consists of 40 lots and recent acquisition of property increased the number of lots from 29 on the preliminary plat.

The commission will meet at 7:30 in the city council chambers.

The Humboldt Odd Fellows mark anniversary

The 154th anniversary of the establishment of the first Lodge in America was commemorated Sunday by members of Humboldt Lodge 24, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

A family dinner was prepared by members of the Rebekah Lodge and served by the lodge youth organization, the Theta Rho Club.

Special guests and speakers for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Iverson, St. Paul, Minn. He is secretary of the Grand Lodge of Minnesota, and Mrs. Iverson is a member of the international youth committee.

In charge of the event were Allen Whetstone, noble grand of Humboldt Lodge; Janet Hanson, noble grand of Wenonah Rebekah Lodge 7, and Kim McManus, president of Soloth Theta Rho 7.

The council adopted a motion that states, "In anticipation of reduction by legislators of the majority age in Minnesota, thereby giving access to intoxicating liquor at that age, we encourage the city council to give consideration to a so-called youth bar in granting the on-sale liquor license now available, or that may become available."

THE COUNCIL said it feels that "the advantages in discouraging travel to out-of-state establishments selling intoxicating beverages are equal, or perhaps greater, in judging on-sale applicants than the matter of capital investment and property tax return."

The council supported Sister M. Joyce Rowland in her contention that "a first-class facility with a manager on the alert and not condoning undesirable behavior patterns or the serving of minors would be a boon to Winona and have the support of students."

Sister Joyce read to the council a letter she had written to Winona Mayor Norman Indall and members of the city council explaining that she had been contacted by a person suggesting establishment of a dance-lounge facility for young adults and asking how she would feel about such a place for her students.

Fishing gear theft studied

Jerold Kingsley, Rochester, Minn., has reported to the Winona County sheriff's office that a rod and reel and a thermos jug were stolen from his son George's campsite at Whitewater State Park Saturday night. The items are valued at $35, according to Sheriff Helmer Wehmann.

Paul Gritter, Circle G Ranch, Winona Rl. 3, reported to the sheriff that two of his horses are missing. A check with neighbors failed to reveal the whereabouts of the missing horses and it has not been determined if the animals were stolen or have merely wandered away. No value was given.

Mrs. Everett Timm, Ulica, reports the theft of a stained glass window from a vacant brick house on Highway 14 one mile east of Ulica. It has not been determined how long the window has been missing.

First District regent nominee selection set

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Legislators from the 1st Congressional District will caucus at 7 a.m. Thursday to nominate a candidate for University of Minnesota regent.

Sen. Roger Laufenburger, DFL-Lewiston, cochairman of the district caucus, said three names would be presented.

They are Dr. David Utz, Rochester; Sue Rockne, Zumbrota; and Alice P. Johnson, Winona.

The 1st District post on the Board of Regents is now held by Daniel Gaine, Owatonna businessman who did not seek another term.

Four regents will be elected later this month at a joint session of the House and Senate. The choices of the district caucuses are customarily accepted.

Cochrane couple in serious list after accident

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Mr. and Mrs. Otto Adank, Cochrane, Wis., remain in serious condition in the special care unit of St. Francis Hospital here where they were admitted Monday evening after the car in which they were riding struck a tree during a heavy rainfall.

Both are age 74.

Adank has chest injuries, possible internal injuries and contusions to the knees. His wife, Julia, has head and leg injuries.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. Monday on Buffalo County Trunk Highway CC at the junction of CTH C.

Charles Pehler, Buffalo County traffic officer, said that Adank, heading west in a 1963 four-door sedan, lost control on the wet pavement. The vehicle ran off the roadway and into a field for 150 feet, where it struck a tree near the Donald Killian farm home. The tree was about 40 feet off the highway.

They were taken to the hospital by a city of Arcadia ambulance.

The car was termed a total loss.

Cable TV group studies technical possibilities

By DAVID C. McKAY
Daily News Staff Writer

There are some "no way" technical standards proposed for cable television that TelePrompTer Cable Services, Inc.'s, regional engineer said can't be met in Winona.

Kevin Gossman, Rochester, Minn., north central regional engineer for the company now franchised in the Winona area, told the mayor's cablevision advisory group Tuesday that some of the proposed standards lifted from a Fridley, Minn., ordinance are beyond the "state of the art."

CABLEVISION Committee chairman Everett L. Edstrom said he would check out Goss-man's claims by next week's meeting. A report also is due that night from the group's educational subcommittee.

The committee continued to work on its recommendations to the Winona City Council on new or renewed cable television franchising. Members furnished a run-through of a model ordinance drafted by City Attorney George M. Robertson Jr., from a similar ordinance used in California.

The 90-day extension on TelePrompTer's expired franchise ends next Monday, but there has been no council move to ward another extension before the committee makes its report.

Liquor license for youth lounge backed

Support for a proposal that the Winona City Council grant the one on-sale liquor license now available here — or one that might become available — to a dance-lounge for college youth was expressed at a recent meeting of the President's Council of the College of Saint Teresa.

The council adopted a motion that states, "In anticipation of reduction by legislators of the majority age in Minnesota, thereby giving access to intoxicating liquor at that age, we encourage the city council to give consideration to a so-called youth bar in granting the on-sale liquor license now available, or that may become available."

THE COUNCIL said it feels that "the advantages in discouraging travel to out-of-state establishments selling intoxicating beverages are equal, or perhaps greater, in judging on-sale applicants than the matter of capital investment and property tax return."

The council supported Sister M. Joyce Rowland in her contention that "a first-class facility with a manager on the alert and not condoning undesirable behavior patterns or the serving of minors would be a boon to Winona and have the support of students."

Sister Joyce read to the council a letter she had written to Winona Mayor Norman Indall and members of the city council explaining that she had been contacted by a person suggesting establishment of a dance-lounge facility for young adults and asking how she would feel about such a place for her students.

SISTER JOYCE wrote the mayor and councilmen, ". . . I was impressed with the possibilities for a meeting place for students from all three colleges, a place that is more than a drinking establishment; a place offering dancing, listening to bands and refreshments for college students. I, for one, am concerned about our students driving and hitchhiking to La Crosse, frequenting bars which allow little room — elbow or otherwise — for group conversation."

Chairman of the Teresian council is Royal Thern. Harold Libera is vice president.

Overwhelming support also was expressed by the council for a proposed second seminar on "Stress and How to Manage It."

The seminar will be conducted by Dr. Richard Steinhauser of the Mayo Clinic staff, Rochester, May 24.

night decided to ask the Federal Communications Commission's (FCC) Cable Television Bureau to go over the local franchise proposal to advise on what can and should be included.

Among the proposed technical standards Gossman said TelePrompTer can't meet is a requirement to conform cable channels to FCC channels—pick up Channel 8 on the subscribers' receiver Channel 3, 19 on 19, etc., because, he said, of interference from strong overlapping signals.

Subscribers here get Channel 8 on 7 and 19 on 6.

Gossman suggested raising the decibel level permitted between visual level and coherent disturbances to the FCC standard rather than the higher proposed standard. He questioned TelePrompTer's ability to match requirements on "terminal isolation" for each subscriber.

He said "no way" could the company meet requirements on "chrominance/luminance delay" (color offset). The delay is the difference in speed in receiving different colors.

The proposal shows plus or minus 100 nanoseconds, and Gossman suggested a "noticeable but acceptable" 500 nanoseconds. Broadcasters are given a 250-nanosecond standard by the FCC.

A NANOSECOND is a billionth of a second.

When Gossman defended TelePrompTer's research and development work as second to none, Edstrom said, "I know from personal research your R & D is tops and you're able to put in an installation that's tops . . . We expect a demand that kind of quality here in Winona."

TelePrompTer manager Thomas R. Pitts said today he would advise against adopting any technical standards in an ordinance which already have been shown to be difficult to meet in other cities.

TelePrompTer attorney Leo Murphy Jr. cited a Minneapolis newspaper account of delays caused in opening service in a Bloomington, Minn., cable because of high standards—standards identical to those in the Fridley ordinance.

Robertson is expected to redraft the ordinance proposal after next week's meeting, and committee members will reread the documents before passing it on with their recommendations to councilmen.

Winona trouble shooting team in competition

A two-member team from its auto mechanics department has been selected to represent the Winona Area Vocational-Technical Institute in Thursday's annual Minnesota Trouble Shooting Contest at White Bear Lake, Minn.

Members of the team are Mark Russert, 20, Winona Rl. 1, and Stephen Wenzel, 20, 163 Laird St.

The White Bear Lake contest is one of 113 regional meets being held throughout the U.S. this spring.

Regional winners will receive all-expense trips to the national contest June 25-27 in Boston, where they will compete for college scholarships and other prizes valued at more than $90,000.

In the contests, students work in teams to two on a car in which a series of malfunctions has been placed.

The team which most quickly and accurately can detect and correct the problems is declared the contest winner.

Scholarship for Polish students set at U. of M.

The Wasie Scholarship Program at the University of Minnesota offers scholarships for undergraduate and graduate work for the 1973-74 academic year.

Connally party switch hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas today will announce his long-expected switch to the Republican party, The Washington Post reports.

The newspaper said the former Secretary of the Treasury would hold a news conference in Houston to make his announcement.

Connally, said the Post, is prepared to combine his change of party affiliation announcement with a defense of President Nixon against criticism arising from Watergate.

The move to defend Nixon is seen by White House and Democratic party sources as helping Connally should he seek the GOP presidential nomination in 1976, said the Post.

Nixon said at a Jan. 31 news conference that Connally, who served in the Treasury post for a year and a half, "could handle any job that I can think of in this country, or in the world for that matter."

The Post quoted Nancy Palm, Harris County (Houston) Republican chairman, as saying she would not "deny that I have inside information that he (Connally) will switch to the Republican party and that he will assist Mr. Nixon in this particular crisis."

Connally's switch had been expected two months ago, but he reportedly withheld his announcement because of developments in the Watergate case.

Minnesota youths

Canoeists hit rocks on social problems

PASCO, Wash. (AP) — Five Minnesota youths and two adults trying to paddle a canoe across the United States have found social problems harder to conquer than the Columbia River.

After 22 days and 320 miles of paddling, the group reached this eastern Washington community late Monday, its leader unenthusiastic about five more months of travel to reach the Atlantic Ocean.

One of the young canoeists has dropped out and a replacement was expected to arrive Wednesday.

The leader, Fred Ress, 26, Minneapolis is testing a theory that such outings are more beneficial and less costly than customary treatment of troubled youth.

Two of the boys are from correctional institutions, two are identified as high school "problem students" and two of the original group are from stable homes. All are 16 or 17. Two days earlier two of the youths "took advantage of my trust," Ress said. "I couldn't relate to them after that—and haven't for two days. . . . That bothers them more than anything else."

The boy who dropped out was

NEW YORK — The lady who made millions with words, Claire Booth Luce, stood erect there in the din of the discotheque called Hartford's Show magazine, and patiently explained why she came to this loud party for the opening of her show "The Women" but did not go to the 46th St. Theater where she could probably have got a good seat.

There was once a critic (declared the ex-Congresswoman, ex-ambassador, the widow of Henry Luce) who wrote:

"I hate this play intensely but it will make a million dollars."

"He was wrong," Mrs. Luce said now, "it made $5 million."

But that wasn't why she didn't go to the opening last night nor to the opening in 1936.

"I wrote some flops before 'The Women,'" she recalled.

"In one of them, the leading woman pulled me from the wings to take a bow. That critic friend of ours," she smiled, "wrote 'Mrs. Luce took off like a gazelle to the cries of 'Author, author' which were audible to no ears but hers.'"

She never attended one of her openings after that.

Mrs. Luce's ideas of the bitchiness of women ever so eager to tell their best friends that their husbands are cheating seem to be as valid now as then based on the reception from the enthusiastic first-nighters.

And a cab driver said: "The Women? I saw the movie. When Roz Russell took a bite out of Paulette Goddard's leg, I said, 'I wouldn't mind bitin' that gam myself!'"

Now it's a third go-round, first the play, then the movie, now the play again, making stars of Dorothy Loudon, of Jan Miner, the Madge the Manicurist of TV commercials, who makes $100,000 a year and doesn't need all this, and of that pretty blonde Marie Wallace who took Lainie Kazan's place and spends a scene in a bathtub — covered, alas, with plastic bubbles.

A question remains which I as a man must ask. Are women really as caty and bitchy as all that? I asked the crowd at the theater and at Sardi's — and no woman said "No." They all said: "They're worse."

If that's true, can those lovely actresses, Myrna Loy, Alexis Smith, Rhonda Fleming and Kim Hunter, get along backstage very long? Won't one night someone traveling on the cuff with a pledge to pay later.

The boys arrived here with noses peeling, hands blistered and backs aching. They calculated it took about 2,000 or strokes apiece to travel 3 miles of the river.

Computers must take blame for billing errors

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Senate says if computers mail out bills, the machines also should take some responsibility for complaints about those bills.

Passed 59-0 Monday was a bill that would require credit card issuers to include the name, address and telephone number of a complaint office on their billing statements.

Sen. Winston Borden, DFL-Brainerd, said the bill is aimed at computerized billing operations, which sometimes result in frustration for consumers who want to question a portion of their bill.

"The measure also would require that when a complaint is made, the disrupted portion of the bill must be held in abeyance until an explanation is made to the customer."

If approved by the House and signed by the governor, the requirement would take effect Aug. 1.

Krieger: GOP plans program to make jobs

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Senate Republican leader Harold Krieger said Tuesday that the GOP will present to the 1974 legislature "a well-tailored legislative program designed to create jobs in Minnesota."

In remarks prepared for a Citizens League breakfast, the Rochester lawyer said the record tax increases enacted during DFL Gov. Wendell Anderson's administration would be the main issue in the 1974 election campaign.

"Minnesota is approaching being the most heavily taxed state in the nation," he said. "We simply must reverse this spiraling tax trend."

The GOP leader also criticized changes in state election laws being pushed by DFLers. "Minnesota will soon become the political Alabama of the Midwest if the people don't wake up to the perversion of our election laws," he said.

He mentioned election-day registration, unrestricted rides to the polls, party designation for the state's three largest cities and the $1 state income tax checkoff for political parties.

He was especially critical of a feature of the party-label bill for state legislators that gives DFL candidates first place on the 1974 ballot ahead of Republicans.

"Of all these," Krieger added, "nonrotation of names is probably the most unfair and may well be unconstitutional."

U.S. affluence harming work of missionaries

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Affluence in America might be making it impossible for U.S. missionaries to be effective with poor persons in needy lands, a U.S. officer of the World Council of Churches said Tuesday.

"American living standards come, in part, from our exploitation of situations in international trade of poorer people in weaker countries," the Rev. Eugene L. Smith, New York secretary of the council, said. "Is it possible for an affluent American to witness faithfully to Christ in communication with restless, economically exploited people, witness to the Christ who was incarnate in a conquered nation, lived among economically exploited people, was crucified by the affluent establishment?" he asked.

He spoke at the closing session of the council's U.S. conference.

Smith said many of the most rapidly growing churches in Africa and Latin America have no foreign missionaries.

A lot of men think that'll happen, leading of course to the suspicion that a lot of men may be a lot of bitches. The lovely creatures with the painted claws.

Gretchen Wyler opened in "Company" at Meadowbrook in N.J. in a wheelchair. She broke a leg in rehearsal.

Comedian Jack E. Leonard had 4-hour open-heart surgery with an audience of 30 doctors. Now high hopes for recovery. . . . Chinese comedian Jadin Wong left her purse in a BMT train in wicked Times Sq. It was returned — in fact . . . The Flip Wilsons expect.

Pearl Bailey so impressed the Iranian Ambassador that she's been invited by the Shah to visit Iran not as an entertainer but as a famous person, and bring along "as many as you want to accompany you."

Harry Belafonte wore a dinner jacket instead of the open-throated shirt at the Carnation Ball, and explained: "I'm getting older now."

Attention, dictators: Rudolf Nureyev enjoyed the chocolate mousse at La Goulue. . . . Secret Stuff: A famous actress and her famous husband are seldom together; she spends more time with her girl friend.

Michele LeF' will see husband James Farentino in "Streetcar," next Sunday, her night off from "Seesaw." (And "Seesaw" producer Joe Kipness'll be her "date"). . . . Tony Perkins took photographer Berry Berenson and four of her cameras to dinner at L'Escarot. . . . Ben Gazzara "explained" his successful marriage to actress Janice Rule: "I let her make the rules, and she lets me break them."

Authoress — stripper Liz Tenny will soon shed her sixth husband. . . . Comics Allen & Rossie (Bernie and Steve) signed a movie deal.

Show Biz Quiz: When Jack Benny told his band-leader, "Play, Don," to whom was he talking? Answer: yesterday's. The star of the stage version of "The Jazz Singer" was George Jessel.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Sal Richards met an aging film star whose figure was once a legend — but the legend is beginning to spread.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Someone wondered what eventually happens to obscene phone callers, and Jimmy Auliero said, "They go on to write for the movies."

EARL'S PEARLS: A fellow complained to Lynn Lichty that his wife's gaining weight. "Where she used to have gentle curves, she now has a four-lane highway."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "It's hard to recognize good luck — it looks so much like something you've earned." — Frank A. Clark.

Victor Frank said he went to the ballgame on Helmet Day and got a helmet; went on Bat Day and got a bat; went on Ladies Day — and was disappointed. That's earl, brother.

The rekindling of the Polish spirit, culture

Yesterday was May Day in the Soviet Union; it was Law Day in the United States, and May 3 — Thursday — is Polish Constitution Day.

We suggest that for Winona the latter is the most significant.

On May 3, 1791 — after about 20 years of attacks by the armies of Germany, Russia and Austria — the remnants of the Polish people adopted a new constitution for the reorganization of Poland. During that long conflict most of the Polish noblemen — including the political and military leadership — had been killed in battle, disabled or subdued. Thus it was the peasantry, artisans and tradesmen who dared to perpetuate the Polish nationality. And they were able to perpetuate it only with continued insurrection against the foreign forces. And it was these kinds of patriots who were among those who came to the United States during the latter years of the 20th Century.

But the significance of May 3 for Winona does not lie in these historical events.

Instead the significance is that the day will be used to point out the presence of the Polish people and their culture in Winona. At a program at St. Stanislaus Church the immigration will be discussed, Polish songs will be sung, Polish dances will be danced, and Polish costumes will be worn. And Polish will be spoken.

We hope that this will be just the beginning of an orderly and continued recognition of the tremendous contributions made by the Polish immigrants and their descendants to the economic and cultural life of Winona.

It might even be a good day to declare a permanent moratorium on Polish jokes. — A.B.

Watching your money (or something) grow

A garden enthusiast, new to the city, reports her delight in finding a garden plot to rent — in response to which we are happy to report the experience of a Council Bluffs, Iowa, banker, who offered to rent a garden plot to individuals for $10. The response has been fantastic — 1,500 have signed up already.

And what a deal — even better than daily interest. The bank will plan, water, fertilize, machine weed and provide hail insurance for the gardens. The gardener? All he does is the close weeding and the harvesting, and, of course, pay the $10, the check for which he can write on any bank. — A.B.

Save the bluffs lest they slide down onto us

• All along Lake Michigan and the other Great Lakes the land is disappearing this year from the bluffs.

At La Crosse they're concerned about the washes of material from the bluffs along the Mississippi River.

• On the Garvin Heights Road the washes continue, as was predicted here a month ago.

• Everywhere, it seems, the earth is moving to the great river, and in the process there is devastation.

Unusually high precipitation is blamed for the erosion of the bluffs.

But really the culprit is man. It was necessary, for example, to rebuild Garvin Heights road, but it also was necessary — at least that is apparent now — to spend additional money on stabilizing the exposed embankments. Already the county board has made an emergency appropriation of $20,000, but a substantial part of that will be spent on a small area.

This spring's experience tells us something else: to guard our bluff lines, believed to be millions of years old. When we cut into them — for a road, a house or whatever — we invite a destruction cycle that is difficult to interrupt. — A.B.

WASHINGTON — Last week when the Watergate thing began getting very bad indeed for President Nixon, establishment thinkers of both parties began taking the line that we should all be cautious about leaning too hard on the President lest we end up by damaging the presidency.

Some suggested that everyone who truly cares about the future of the Republic ought to rise above party on this one. And join hands to see Mr. Nixon safely through the storm, for the sake of saving the presidency.

Our presidency — right or wrong? A strange argument. If any benefit is to flow from the Watergate business, it might be the gaudy evidence that the presidency is in bad shape and urgently needs to be reformed. To ignore this one positive aspect of the thing would be a sad loss of opportunity.

THIS IS precisely the time for establishment men to lean on the thing with all their weight instead of urging us all to rush sandbags to the levee. The presidency, after all, is not the country. It is not even the government, but only a third of it. And even if it were the whole, why ought we accord it such awe as the devout give the divine?

Comparable reverence for the Congress would be looked upon by sensible men as evidence of imbecility. As for the judiciary, wise understanding begins with the axiom that while justice may be blind, judges are either Democrats or Republicans.

The weaknesses of the presidency have been accumulating since Franklin Roosevelt. It has become monarchical, arrogant, overblown with power and remote from the people. These vices were at the heart of Watergate. The royal court's thirst for intrigue and intelligence inspired it. The limitless power of the Presidency to grant boons, or withhold, persuaded the bankrollers to finance it. Men, who had never run for public office, and had contempt for other men who had, organized it. And when it was exposed and should have been acknowledged, arrogance and power were used to conceal it, and made the final exposure more scandalous.

IT IS NOT an attractive office. All that power; all those technicians, executives, professors, lawyers, cops. The constant danger of lunatic assault to which so much power encapsulated in a single human body is inevitably vulnerable. The man outside the door with the box that blows up the world. All that firepower in the limousines that accompany the President to church.

Sealed off behind his metal fence, inside his guarded house, tucked away in his private office where even senators may find it impossible to pass the hired Cerberus guarding the door, the President finds it hard to hear the country, the other men it has elected, the hurly-burly of the streets.

Everything about the office works to persuade him of his own unnatural grandeur. This must create in the poor human man who enters this capsule a fearful suspicion that it would endanger all mankind if, in some test of the moment, he were exposed to the world as human. Not Olympian Zeus at all, but only the Wizard of Oz.

We look to them all as Olympian Zeuses now. The establishment men who urge us not to damage the presidency are encouraging the view. In a time of few gods, let us not do away with one who has the power to hurl the ultimate thunderbolt.

All this is terribly unhealthy. Even Napoleon had Fouché and Talleyrand to move outside in the great world and keep him in touch. Presidents have only courtiers to keep out what they would rather not have presidents hear.

AS THE presidency becomes more grotesque and overbearing, it begins to destroy our President. John Kennedy was killed by it. The same institutional vices which created Watergate for Richard Nixon while he was occupied with foreign policy destroyed Lyndon Johnson in Vietnam while he was occupied with domestic policy.

Watergate shows us again the need for change. We have had repeated evidence over a dozen years that reform is overdue, that we must restore the human dimension to this potentially most graceful of political ideas, that we must somehow dispel the iron fences and firepower and brilliant tough-minded hard noses which seal the man off like priests around Pharaoh; and make it possible once again for him to be merely the first citizen of the Republic.

PARIS — The most visionary initiative ever undertaken by U.S. foreign policy originated after World War II with the Marshall Plan, developed into massive reconstruction of West Europe and East Asia, and produced a global security network based on American pledges to fight, if necessary, to keep the peace.

This was a remarkable achievement, above all for a nation suddenly projected into superpower responsibilities even before it had shed the psychological vestments of isolationism. Fundamental aspirations of the United States, at first but dimly perceived, were on the whole well satisfied.

Old enemies and older friends were restored to economic health and political sanity. New adversaries were discouraged from any temptation to extend their power, while chaos was eliminated from bordering areas.

THIS WAS an expensive enterprise but it was far from being solely altruistic. American interests were served by assuring stability in areas where immense U.S. trade and investment markets were mushrooming. And when Washington accepted the former British responsibility for protecting Greece and Turkey, this produced a United States presence in the Mediterranean which served to express American concern with the Middle East.

Postwar policy was thus based upon hardheaded realism even if inspired by sentimental dreams, and the United States discovered speedily that national interests were more durable than international friendships.

Therefore Washington never hesitated in discerning dangers to stability if the ideological dynamism of its former allies, Russia and China, was not discouraged. This inspired the Manichean phase of pactomania that featured U.S. policy during the nineteen-fifties.

Moreover, our most intimate friends soon found that while they were being far from neglected by their great ally, neither were their recent enemies. It soon became plain that both West Germany and Japan would have to play critically

Local pains

An editorial in Milwaukee Sentinel

The closing and cutting back on 274 military bases around the country should please those who have been demanding a reduction in defense spending.

But, not unexpectedly, some politicians from areas that will be economically affected by the cutbacks are complaining.

Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) charges that the action means sacrificing jobs at home so that bases can be maintained abroad.

Boston Mayor Kevin White worries about the unemployment that will be caused in his city because of the closing of the Boston Navy Yard.

As has been the case when similar closings were announced in the past, the basic argument of national defects most U.S. diplomatic thinking gained momentum through the Common Market and a growing European NATO contribution.

Yet for years it has been evident the cycle was drawing to an end. The nightmare of a monolithic communist bloc vanished in polycentrism. Meanwhile, the United States found there was a limit to even its untold wealth. General de Gaulle was the first of many Europeans to protest against the almighty dollar and the unhealthy export of American capital to buy up foreign enterprises. The atomic monopoly was broken and the power balance became successively bipolar, then pentagonal.

fense needs becomes mixed up with local economic problems.

However severe the job loss potential may be, it is no justification for maintaining an unneeded military installation.

The Pentagon action, in this case, will save nearly a billion dollars a year.

Whether other savings can be realized through the closing of overseas bases is another question.

But perpetuating the mainland bases at the cost of a billion dollars a year just to maintain employment rolls in selected areas would be unfair to the taxpayers in parts of the country where there are no bases.

It is nothing more than a form of federal welfare, pegged at wage rates substantially above the poverty level.

An editorial in Wall Street Journal

No one need be reminded that mores and morals are changing. Language and scenes that would have been unthinkable only a decade ago routinely appear in movies and stageplays. And whether this new frankness is good or bad, psychologically liberating or spiritually debilitating, there isn't much argument that it is likely to be with us awhile.

But it is one thing willingly to anteup money for tickets to a movie or play, and something quite different to tune in radio or TV and be subjected to X-rated discussions and portrayals. Therefore, the Federal Communications Commission is busily trying to establish ground rules to prohibit obscene and indecent programming without trying to set itself up as full-fledged censor.

THE FCC recently voted, for example, to fine the owner of an Illinois radio station for allowing two "topless" radio shows, on which mostly female listeners call in to discuss every matter of sexual subject with the male moderator. As a result other stations with "X-rated" programs quickly abandoned or tightened up on this sort of talk-show format.

Having shown that it intends to impose some limits, the FCC is now faced with late-night "adult" cable television. Many cable systems, over which the FCC claims jurisdiction, have been using their extra programming capacity to show first-run movies, which as anyone knows are a step behind television standards of candor.

Some of the cable systems have been going beyond standard movie fare to test the outer limits of frankness and taste — in one case by showing "Deep Throat."

Reading between the lines of public statements after the "topless radio" ruling, we sense that some station managements that had been broadcasting such shows were downright relieved that someone stepped forward to draw a line.

It does, after all, take a great deal of courage to stand up for any kind of standards of speech in our society today. Somehow we have extended the notion that laws should not limit freedom of speech into the notion that it is dishonorable for anyone to inflict or even urge any standards whatever.

We note, though, that people are not always willing to live with the results of these attitudes. Witness for example, the current eagerness of so impeccable a liberal as John Lindsay to clean up smut in Times Square. There is a danger, too, that if the arbiters of public taste set no standards, then the authorities, whether the FCC or the mayor of New York, will sooner or later be prevailed upon to make such standards matters not of taste but of law.

THE TELEVISION regulators find themselves in an unenviable position, charged by law with drawing the standards that have eluded the Supreme Court and that many in the private sector will not even attempt to uphold. We would prefer that the public and station managers assume this task, but the FCC has our sympathy.

No doubt some will ridicule its efforts, but let them ponder that perhaps, just as Mayor Lindsay reacts when pornography overruns Times Square, so the public may react if pornography overruns their living rooms.

Test guaranteed to stump the 'educated' people

Q—"As one who has worked on newspapers and magazines all my life, I've compiled a 15-question test which has been given to thousands. Five of these questions I deem important enough to pass on to you because 'educated' people just don't know the answers:

1—What are the nine capitals of the U.S. since 1776?

2—What are the 10 provinces of Canada?

3—What 11 states comprised the Confederate States of America?

4—Name either the first 12 Presidents of the United States in their proper order; or give the names of the 12 Apostles; or the last 12 Presidents of the United States in their proper order.

5—What were the original 13 colonies?

For an educated person, these things should be familiar to him or her, as easily identifiable as the morning's breakfast. Yet they aren't. Why not?" — W.W.H., Pompano Beach, Fla.

A—Because too many teachers no longer believe in making children memorize anything. How many of my readers passed Mr. W.W.H.'s test without looking up the answers on the sly? Be honest, now.

Q—"I object to teaching the theory of evolution in our public schools, whether as a theory or as a proven fact. The teaching of evolution is against the teaching of the Bible." — J. W. G., Centralia, Wash.

A—Oh, shucks, so is the theory of communism. So was Adolf's "Mein Kampf." For that matter, so was the persecution of the Christian martyrs by old

Diocletian. Yet students need to study these things because they exist and have influenced our civilization, for good or for evil. I don't object to teaching children about such ideas and events, as long as all sides of each question are presented. What I do object to, and more than somewhat, is promoting any of them as Divine Certainty infallibly unveiled.

Q—"I have been taking a night course in intermediate bridge in a local high school. One of the men in class is the principal of a grade school, where apparently anything goes. The kids aren't taught to remember anything but to learn where they can go to find what they want to know, or so he told me.

"Evidently he applies this method of learning in his own private life, part of which is this bridge class. This semester is his third time in this course of 10 lessons of 2½ hours each. He has learned very little more, if any, than he should have known when he first enrolled. He comes to class carrying the text plus another book or two on bridge, but it's apparent that none has been studied. Whenever he bids or responds, he looks into the book to see what to do. Naturally he's about as popular with the rest of the class as his cohorts are with you." — Name withheld.

A—Intermediate Bridge is obviously too much for him. He should switch to Beginning Par-

Q—"Your recent column entitled 'Inner-City Children Need Same Schooling' is to the point. For many years people were successfully educated by being required to study certain courses at certain times. This not only instilled information in the minds of the students, but it was also good mental discipline.

"There are many times when all of us would prefer to do something other than the assignment set before us. But if we did so, we would become lazy. Why does the student, who is the one supposed to be acquiring an education, suddenly know what the teacher should be teaching him?" — M.A.C., Lewisburg, Pa.

A—A good question. Carrying it to its logical conclusion, why shouldn't the doctor's patient take out the doctor's appendix?

Q—"You should have researched your answer about Malawi's President Hastings Banda. The policy of the Jehovah's Witnesses is to proselytize Negroes but later to refuse to admit them into the 'highest' degree of membership. This has been a source of great distress to blacks who have become devout Witnesses. Blacks are second-class citizens in the eyes of the Witnesses. Small wonder President Banda would like to be rid of the demoralizing effects of such religious practices in his developing country.

"Incidentally, I am not a black, but a WASP." — Mrs. J.A.B., Orlando, Fla.

A—I don't really care if you're a HORNET. How do I get into controversies like this, anyhow? Oh, well, if any of Jehovah's Witnesses readers want to rebut this one, hop to it. But right then I am going to turn this whole Malawi bit out to pasture at least until 2001 A.D.

Q—"In your recent column on Adm. Elmo Zumwalt and his 'mud' Navy, you made a big thing out of sailors dressing properly, shaving and cutting their hair. Don't you know that real fighting men always look sloppy? It's the cream puffs who have never seen action that are always spic and span." — M.E.A., Ocala, Fla.

A—No, I didn't know that, and I still don't. Before me is a wire service account of the recent "phasing out" of Patton's old "3rd Army." Here are two quotations:

"When we had taken Erlangen in World War II, Patton and Bradley came up to review the troops. Incredible as it seems, three men were put in the stockade for 24 hours because their pants weren't creased."

and "The 3rd Army was probably the neatest, cleanest Army that ever fought a war. Patton saw to that. And I've always believed that was one of the reasons it was such a fine Army. We hated the rules. But we never lost a battle."

How now, MEA? Were Patton's men "cream puffs"? Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Fogel to direct law commission

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — David Fogel, former Minnesota Prisons Commissioner, has been appointed executive director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Fogel, 46, was nominated by Walker to be head of the Illinois Prison System but was rejected by the state Senate at the height of a political clash between the Democratic governor and members of his party loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The naming of Fogel to the ILEC post, the pay for which has been $25,000 annually, was confirmed by Walker Tuesday morning at a news conference on an uprising at Mendota State Prison. The governor said the bearded director of criminology gave key advice on how to quell the disturbance.

Each year the Law Enforcement Commission distributes to state and local police agencies, courts and related organizations some $35 million in federal crime-fighting funds under the 1968 Safe Streets Act.

Allan H. Andrews, who has served as executive director for the last 13 months, will become the commission's director of police programs, Walker announced. He said Andrews, formerly police chief in Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Peoria, would keep his same salary.

The post is not subject to the advice and consent of the Senate. The commission was created by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie in 1969.

Walker later said in a statement that Fogel "is much too valuable a man to be lost to Illinois."

"Doctor Fogel and Al Andrews will work together to plan and implement programs that will better provide for the personal safety of our citizens," Walker said.

Preservation of interstate reciprocity asked

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Minnesota legislators were asked Tuesday by the Wisconsin Assembly to preserve a reciprocity agreement under which neither state levies income taxes on the other's residents.

Assemblymen sent to the Senate 96-0 a resolution asking the Minnesota Legislature to reject a measure which would terminate the pact.

The 1967 agreement has protected a resident of one state from having to pay state income taxes on income he may earn in the neighboring state.

The Assembly gave preliminary approval 56-40 to a proposed constitutional amendment which would allow the Wisconsin Supreme Court to remove censured judges from the bench.

Republican Rep. John Shabazz of New Berlin argued instead for a resolution to retain the address system, the process under which the legislature can remove a judge.

Assemblymen rejected an amendment which would have required school board members to run for office from specified election districts.

They also rejected an amendment which would make preliminary elections mandatory in electing school board members.

Lucey prediction

Petroleum need as utility seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — America may have to convert its petroleum industry to a public utility to protect itself against further exploitation of natural resources, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey says.

Lucey, testifying Tuesday during a congressional hearing on the fuel crisis, blamed the industry's profit motive for endangering Wisconsin's 1973 agricultural outlook and censured President Nixon's flirtation with oil corporations.

Fuel shortages are partly a result of the refusal of major fuel corporations to supply independent retail stations when fatter profits are available elsewhere, the Democratic governor said.

"If the only way the energy industry can be prodded in the right direction is through the assurance of exorbitant profits at public expense, then it may be time to think of making this industry a public utility," Lucey said.

Energy, he said, should be considered a natural resource, not a private province to be exploited for corporate profit.

Lucey spoke to the House Subcommittee on Conservation and Natural Resources, which is seeking recommendations for conserving energy resources.

The governor said spring plowing may fall short of needs in Wisconsin this season because of a shortage of gasoline and diesel fuel needed by tractors.

The alarm, he said, has been reported to him by farm groups and cooperatives.

Heavy rain in late 1972, he said, forced farmers to postpone plowing about 1.8 million acres until this spring.

That increased the spring plowing need about 75 per cent, but farmers are having trouble finding the extra fuel, he said.

He blamed major petroleum companies which, reporting gasoline shortages of their own, are suspending distribution of fuel to independent retailers in the Dairy State.

"Independent gasoline distributors in the state have received word from their suppliers that they are going to be held to their 1972 allotments," he testified.

Because of Wisconsin's large number of independent distributors, price wars are not uncommon and the major oil firms prefer to deal in states where price levels remain more reliable, Lucey said.

"The majors just don't like Wisconsin," he said.

The governor said gasoline users might be encouraged to be less wasteful of fuel were the government to enact a tax surcharge on gasoline.

A surcharge, he said, would produce revenue to serve taxpayers without winding up as profit in the pockets of oil corporations.

Lucey said Congress should consider penalties for persons and firms who waste fuel, and rewards for those who conserve energy.

Legislation could include standards for building insulation, mass transit and recycling, he said.

The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said about half of U.S. energy consumption involves waste.

"We annually waste in our gasoline consumption and home electric heating as much as all the energy Japan uses in a year," he said.

Lucey censured Nixon's energy conservation message as designed "to duck the fundamental question of who will pay."

Nixon "makes it perfectly clear" that he hopes "oil, gas and coal producers will not be made to pay," Lucey said.

The energy industry gave Nixon's reelection campaign about $20 million last year, the governor said.

"I cannot believe that giving greater governmental payoffs to an industry," Lucey said, "will solve much of anything. Yet this is what the President proposes."

As Lucey spoke, oil firms were readjusting prices and fuel allotments in his home state.

Cities Service Oil Co. told its Citgo stations to raise their Milwaukee prices one cent a gallon. One of the dealers said they were not told why, but that it was assumed the fuel shortage was being blamed.

Amoco Oil Co. told its Standard stations it cannot supply any more fuel than was available to them in 1972, despite an estimated 10 per cent increase in consumer demand.

The company warned dealers that, if they allow customers to exhaust their station supplies before the end of the month, they can expect no further delivery until the subsequent month.

"If the dealer uses up all his allocation for May," dealers were told, "that's it until June."

The curtailment should be "combined with a concerted effort by everyone to consume less gasoline," a company spokesman said, recommending consumers reduce individual consumption by 10 per cent.

He said demand is increasing because of greater motoring during vacation periods and because of heavier, power-equipped cars.

"Unless unnecessary consumption is eliminated," he said, "it is probable that there will be service station run-outs during the vacation peak later this summer."

Automation, hiring policy speeds post office operation

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Officials say more mail is going through the postal gorges in better and faster ways than ever before, but there are some complaints mixed in with the bouquets.

And postal union spokesmen say that automation and a hold-the-line hiring policy have brought speedups and overtime that are making it rough for the employee.

In the three-state area of Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota, first-class mail goes through on time if the mail sacks catch a plane as scheduled. And postal officials here say that's practically all the time.

The postal patron can count on next-day delivery for much of the area, but there's apt to be second-day performance if the addressee is off the beaten path.

As rail transportation diminished in recent years, mail delivery has turned more and more to air. It means that air mail gets first priority and first-class also goes that way but it could be delayed if the pouches are full.

Three postal officials at Minneapolis, Lamoine Johnson, head of customers relations; Walter Johnson, director of operations, and Joseph A. Ryan, district director of customer services, explained the modern postal operation as it centers on this area.

They said the bulk of first class mail depends on air taxi, leased twin-engine aircraft that carry a ton of cargo. The lights are meshed with incoming mail from the Dakotas.

For instance, a flight leaving the Twin Cities at 11 p.m. arrives at Fargo, N.D., at 12:35 a.m., returns at 12:55 a.m., and arrives back at 2:30 a.m. Flights from Fargo relay mail to half a dozen larger cities in North Dakota.

Similar schedules are run from Minneapolis-St. Paul to Grand Forks, N.D., by way of Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls. And Minnesota is linked with South Dakota points through Sioux Falls.

Commercial flights also are used extensively.

Truck delivery — what the Postal Service calls "star" routes — also fan out from the Twin Cities. Fifty-seven such routes are dispersed from New Brighton staging area, and much of the mail is second and third class.

The Twin Cities have jurisdiction for most of the southern two-thirds of Minnesota; Fargo for the northern region, and Sioux Falls handles nearby Minnesota counties.

"Nobody has better transportation than we have," asserts Ryan, who acknowledges that United Postal Service gives the old standby competition.

While proposed shutdowns in some towns invariably brings an uproar from some local citizens, postal officials say closings invariably come only when the great majority of people in an area demand it.

"In each case, the people indicated they wanted rural delivery, they didn't want to go and get their mail in town," said Walter Johnson. "It virtually takes a mandate from the people to discontinue a post office."

Postal spokesmen say they are moving the mail with greater dispatch, while introducing automation designed to do a more efficient job.

Among unsolicited testimonials the Minneapolis office received in recent weeks, in response to a newspaper background story about the service, were several from large firms.

The traffic manager for Montgomery Ward in St. Paul, R.J. Mayer, wrote, "I can assure you that we at Montgomery Ward feel the Postal Service is giving us some of the best service available anywhere." He added that orders leaving the catalog office for Upper Midwest points were arriving for the most part by the second day.

A spokesman for Sears, Roebuck and Co., another firm with a large mail-order business, said the service had improved "and we truly appreciate these efforts to help us serve our customer."

The mail movers get an occasional brickbat from a patron who got a magazine late or not at all, or who maintains a letter was unduly delayed.

Lamoine Johnson said some firms do not consistently dump their metered mail in the box the same day it's stamped. Some, he said, may date it Friday but not get around to putting it in a box until later in the weekend.

Third-class mailings such as notices or bulletins from churches or others with large membership lists may be delayed at times. One church complains that its bulletins mailed Thursday don't always get to a residence by Saturday. One time, a batch designated for one zip code area was delayed 10 days.

Walman Optical of Minneapolis, which mails out glasses and parts daily to a seven-state area, has had difficulty getting next-day delivery on first-class air parcels, particularly those sent to Montana. Rock Island, Ill., is another trouble spot, as is Staples, Minn.

Walman spokesman Jack Morrow said the firm makes special trips to air mail boxes to ensure the parcels would go directly to the airport. He feels some postal runs now take about 30 per cent more time, but that for most purposes his firm gets good service.

The Postal Service, since taking over from the old Post Office system, has pushed automation and special services to move the some 90 billion pieces it handles nationwide annually. Six letter-sorting machines manned by 20 workers each help expedite the Minneapolis flow.

A "bar code" system, similar to what banks use on checks, records and sorts some 1,400 pieces of business mail an hour, compiling the metered cost of the letters for an instantaneous total. About 150 firms are using it locally.

Spokesmen for unionized postal workers say the new thrust isn't all for the good.

Earl Miller, president of Minneapolis Local 2100, American Postal Workers Union, said there are a lot of misconceptions about what has happened. "There've been a lot of promises, like next-day delivery, acceleration and modernization," he said.

"I think the public was misled into believing it could be an overnight thing. They're not aware of the ramifications."

He said the brunt of criticism has fallen on workers unfairly.

Miller charged that services were being cut for budget considerations, that workers have been pushed harder and been forced to work too much overtime to cover for jobs not replaced.

"The product is up, the volume is up, but morale of workers is lower," he said.

Robert Tripanier, who heads Branch 9, National Association of Letter Carriers, with 1,450 members, complains the Postal Service is eliminating some service. He said 100 positions lost through attrition the past year were not filled and that only recently were 40 hired.

He charged the Postal Service nationally and locally is trying to undercut the contract.

For example, said Tripanier, local officials have tried to shunt him aside in dealing with grievances, maintaining the disputes should go to the Chicago regional office after they've gone through the shop steward level.

That prompted a $100,000 damage suit filed by the union.

The suit was withdrawn in the wake of an apparent settlement, but Tripanier charged management reneged on its agreement.

Morton Layer, Minneapolis

postmaster acknowledged there has been a "tightening up" of the work force around the country but said limited hiring of carriers and clerks has resumed.

"We have more mechanization and other factors involved that change our work force," he said. "I feel in the clerical crafts it takes a significant amount of time to train people. The overtime will probably taper off in the next few months."

Layer disagreed with Tripanier's version of the grievance matter, saying it was part of a dispute with national implications, and he preferred to reserve comment. He said he believed it would be resolved out of court.

Last resort

State ready to ration gas

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Minnesota officials are preparing a modified gas-rationing plan as a last resort in the event of a gasoline shortage this summer.

Minnesota Civil Defense Director James Erchul said in an interview Tuesday that the plan might have to be put into effect if there is no nationwide fuel allocation plan.

He was in Washington to give testimony before a subcommittee on consumer economics headed by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

Erchul said the state would first conduct a campaign to persuade drivers to form car pools or ride buses and to drive more slowly. He estimates gas usage could be cut by up to 20 per cent.

If the situation worsens in spite of the campaign, Erchul said, the first stage of the plan would be put into effect. It would involve asking suppliers to distribute fuel to all retailers, including independents. All outlets would receive the same proportion of the supply allocated to the state as they received during a historical base period.

If necessary, Erchul said, the second stage of the plan would be implemented. The second phase would impose a "mild" form of rationing on fuel consumers, he said.

Distributors would be asked to contribute fuel to a statewide "pool." The fuel would be distributed on a priority basis, with public service facilities such as hospitals, police and fire departments receiving first consideration.

Erchul said the legislature will be asked to give the governor's office emergency power to allocate crucial materials such as fuel in case of a statewide shortage.

He added, however, that he considers a proposal by Humphrey to be more satisfactory. The senator has proposed an Emergency Fuel Allocation Board to "assure fair allocation of petroleum products to all parts of the country."

Probate reform grinds to halt

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Portions of Wisconsin's probate reform campaign crunched to a halt Tuesday in the Republican-controlled Senate after having been approved by the Democratic-controlled Assembly.

Three minor reform measures from the Assembly were set aside for future consideration as lawyer senators debated various proposed amendments.

A bill to allow simple transfer of the family car to a surviving spouse was stalled when senators found themselves unable to agree whether to change the language to read "automobile" instead of "vehicle."

Senators tabled the bill and took up a bill to allow swift, summary settlement of an estate whose assets do not exceed $3,000.

The bill would also allow summary action for estates of up to $10,000 when there is a surviving spouse or minor children.

But that measure too was tabled amid debate over whether heirs to estates of $10,000 or less ought to have to notify creditors.

"I do not think we should forget the creditors," Republican Sen. Roger Murphy of Waukesha declared.

His request was rejected 20-10.

Republican Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek demanded he be listed as a co-sponsor of the Assembly bill, insisting they are similar to Senate measures he proposes.

Democratic Sen. Fred Rissor asked that the term "minor children" be deleted from the summary settlement bill, eliminating a requirement to notify creditors in small estate settlements.

"It does not seem right that whether a creditor collects or not depends on whether a child is an adult," Rissor said.

Wisconsin no-fault plan loses some of its glitter

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—No-fault insurance, as proposed in 11 bills before the state legislature, lost some of its glitter Tuesday.

Even a consumer advocate acknowledged the no-fault debate has uncovered some shortcomings in the legislation which need resolving before Wisconsin adopts the program.

The bills were the subject of a hearing before the Senate's lawyer-dominated, Republican-controlled Judiciary and Insurance Committee.

A proposal backed by Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and another by two Milwaukee Democrats, Assemblymen Dennis Conto and Paul Scula, shared the spotlight.

After long questioning of witnesses by Republican committee members, Arthur Gordon of the Wisconsin Consumers League said he was having second thoughts about the no-fault concept.

"I do not think enough people understand actually what no-fault involves," Gordon testified. "It is not as simple as everybody thinks."

No-fault insurance is designed to assure prompt payment of benefits, including hospitalization and loss of pay, regardless of who may subsequently be found at fault in an accident.

A number of the plans before the legislature would set limits on the consumer's eligibility to sue for pain and damages.

Gordon said retired persons would pay premium rates like everyone else, but would not receive loss-of-pay benefits under the 11 proposals because they have no salary to lose.

He said no-fault hospitalization payments would duplicate those of the medical insurance many persons now have. The consumer would pay premiums on both policies, Gordon said, but only one policy would have to pay hospital bills.

"We are piling insurance on top of insurance at the expense of the consumer," Gordon told the committee.

Another Consumer League spokesman, Kenneth Clark of West Allis, said the league supports a bill drawn up by a 16-member task force appointed by Lucey.

R. J. Wendorff of Employers Insurance of Wausau said his company also backs the Lucey proposal.

Wendorff said he has received estimates that the bill could reduce the cost of auto insurance premiums up to 12 per cent.

Under questioning, Wendorff said some policy holders might hesitate to file claims with their own insurance companies, as the no-fault plans propose, because they fear the companies would react by increasing the filers' premiums.

There was considerable debate over whether motorists are justified in anticipating increased or reduced proportionately.

The committee chairman, Republican Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, asked aloud whether the legislature should sponsor hearings statewide to make certain consumers understand the details of no-fault.

The Lucey task force proposes an insured policy holder not be allowed to sue for damages unless hospital and medical costs exceed $1,000.

Scula opposed this limit, or threshold.

His proposal would allow lawyers to file recovery actions in most cases.

"Most of the threshold bills that have been introduced do not lower rates," Scula said.

"In fact, they will actually raise them."

"Don't you think the threshold is going to encourage people to build up medical bills, and this will make the cost of insurance go up, not down?" Lorge added.

Rep. Harout Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, called the Scula-Conto approach "the biggest phony of them all."

"It's a State Bar Association bill. It is a Blue Cross-Blue Shield bill and a lot of other things thrown in," Sanasarian said.

"There's no doubt in my mind that under this bill, the premiums will skyrocket to no end," he said.

Lorge questioned the opinion of some no-fault backers that a limit on lawsuits would cut the cost of court actions and lawyers' fees.

He said studies show lawyers are used in a small percentage of insurance cases.

Indeed, insurance spokesmen have often said property damage to poorly designed vehicles is the chief factor in insurance costs that force premium rates to increase.

"It is my feeling the insurance companies are using attorneys as whipping boys to pass these bills," Lorge said.

"I want to know if the insurance companies will be making profits on these things," the lawyer legislator added.

Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, a supporter of the task force bill, called arguments about premium costs a "smoke screen."

He said they are used by opponents to obscure the real issues. He said no-fault was never meant to reduce insurance rates.

The real purpose of no-fault, Nager said, is to speed up reimbursement to accident victims and to increase the amount of policy costs that are returned to benefit the insurance consumer.

Wendorff said Wisconsin has a good, liberal tort system, but that it is "a false system because there are many persons who collect nothing."

"The task force bill," the insurance executive testified, "provides reasonable benefits and eliminates court litigation for minor injury accidents while the bill introduced by the State Bar would increase litigation."

Democratic Sen. William Bablitch of Stevens Point challenged Scula's bill, saying the legal profession's proposal would require a five-day waiting period before a victim could begin collecting lost wages.

The governor's bill also calls for up to $2,500 for rehabilitation of an injured victim while the lawyers' bill provides nothing for rehabilitation, Bablitch said.

More civilians, women needed to fill quota

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office estimates the new all-volunteer military will fall short of manpower goals unless it hires more civilians, recruits more women and lowers its intelligence standards.

A GAO report says the military next year could fall 11,000 to 23,000 short of its goal of 345,000 new recruits—primarily for the Army and Marines—under present mental-ability levels and high school graduate quotas.

The GAO analysis, based on GI volunteer trends in past years, was prepared for delivery today to the House military-manpower subcommittee.

It said the military could compete with the civilian labor force for 433,000 to 580,000 women a year, but only plans to recruit 36,700 women a year by 1977.

"It is apparent," the GAO report said, "that much greater potential exists to use women in uniform."

The report also said the Pentagon has decided to turn some 35,000 military jobs over to civilians next year instead of 70,000.

"Here again," the report said, "significant additional potential exists."

The GAO also suggested the military could attract into uniform civilians with especially needed military skills by signing them up at higher rank rather than enlisting them as recruits.

The report predicted the Army and Marines, with their present high school and intelligence standards, would have the greatest trouble in getting enough recruits for the new all-volunteer military. The Navy will have some trouble and the Air Force will have none, the report said.

Junior college faculty ratify master contract

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The nearly 1,000 faculty members in Minnesota's 18 public junior colleges have ratified a master contract with the state Junior College Board.

The agreement is the first master contract ever negotiated for faculty in higher education in Minnesota, according to the joint announcement Tuesday by Chancellor Philip C. Helland of the junior college system and the Minnesota Junior College Faculty Organization, an affiliate of the Minnesota Education Association.

The pact formalizes the current salary schedule and provides a 5.1 per cent pay boost for 1973-74. It doesn't mention "tenure," but provides a protective clause for faculty in the areas of academic freedom, civil rights and due process.

Laird endorses Warren for governor in 1974

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Robert W. Warren has been restored to his role as the apparent Republican candidate for governor in 1974 with the blessing of former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

The attorney general, already his party's top state office holder, received Laird's endorsement Tuesday while Warren joined other state Republicans in expressing hope that President Nixon can wipe away the party's Watergate stain.

Laird, a northern Wisconsin congressman before joining the Nixon cabinet in 1969, has been queried by Wisconsin Republicans about running for the office held by Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

"I have no plans to run for any office," Laird said Tuesday in Washington.

He said he may rejoin the Nixon administration, but not at the cabinet level.

Laird said Warren asked him if, were he to run for governor, "I would support him. I said that I would."

Lucey, also in Washington, said he still does not discount the possibility of Laird being the GOP gubernatorial nominee in 1974.

The governor said Republican national committee member Ody J. Fish of Wisconsin does not let the topic expire.

"I am surprised that Ody Fish keeps dangling Laird's name if Laird is not interested," Lucey remarked.

Laird said he figures Nixon made the right move when, pressured by Democrats to have an impartial investigator explore the Watergate scandals, he turned the matter over to his acting attorney general, Elliot L. Richardson.

In Madison, Democratic Lt. Gov. Martin J. Schreiber addressed a memo to Warren, suggesting he join the U.S. Senate in requesting that Richardson name an unbiased investigator.

"As the ranking representative of the Republican party in Wisconsin," Schreiber told him, "you should have a particular interest in resolving the confidence crisis brought on by the Watergate scandal."

Warren, in a terse statement, said Republicans everywhere are "apprehensive about what it means to the total political picture."

But he said he is confident Nixon "will see that the matter is completely aired."

Sen. Robert Knowles, Republican president pro tem of the state Senate and another gubernatorial possibility, called for a thorough investigation of the administration's political espionage scandals.

Nixon, Knowles said, must "restore confidence in the presidency."

"It is vital that he not operate under a cloud for the next three years," the senator added.

Knowles is the brother of former GOP Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

Sheboygan optimistic about its new lake seawall

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Mary and Tom Manning don't flinch quite as much these days when a northeaster sends Lake Michigan waves crashing toward their property.

But, chances are, their neighbors to the south and north of the city limits do.

The Mannings' land, perched about 30 feet back on a bluff overlooking the lake, is one of the many protected by Sheboygan's new seawall.

Officials are optimistic that the wall, constructed with huge stone blocks, will do the job of breaking the lake's powerful waves during the current high water period and prevent further undercutting and erosion of the bluffs.

The seawall protection only extends as far as the city limits, leaving areas such as Cleveland, Black River and the town of Holland to their own devices.

Mrs. Manning still keeps a wary eye on the shoreline every time a storm blows in, having learned respect for the lake from the days before the seawall.

She surveys the 15 foot bluff at the foot of their property, looking for more signs of settling but is hopeful the real damage is over.

Before the seawall, the Mannings said, they could see the lake beginning to undercut. The result shows on one side of their backyard where a short stone fence has sunk down the side of the bluff, dragging a row of small evergreens along with it.

"We began to worry that the whole backyard might start falling," Tom Manning said.

"How do you replace that, who do you hire and where do you do it?" he asked, reflecting some of the helplessness lake-shore owners said they felt when confronted by the high waters.

The lake had changed from friend to enemy as it gouged at their shoreline.

One neighbor said the sound of the waves used to comfort him as he fell asleep but this past winter, they kept him awake as he thought of the possible damage they were inflicting.

Mary Ann Roenitz' single-story modern home is built on a concrete slab, about 20 feet from the bluff's edge.

"We weren't in any danger of dangling over the edge," she said. "But our backyard was being usurped."

"That seawall was our saving grace," she said.

Part of their backyard had settled. Had more settled, it could have disturbed the home's foundation and played havoc with its wiring and heating.

For the Mannings and Roenitz, there had been more of a danger to their investment than to their physical well-being.

To the south of the city in Black Creek, Nancy Drown had a different story.

She and her husband and family had moved into their A-frame home on the lake just seven weeks before a heavy, early spring storm.

When they moved in, their backyard extended eight feet out from a raised patio before it gave way to stone piled on the narrow beach to break the waves. Today, the back yard extends only a foot and a half.

"I looked out the window during the storm at the stand of trees on what used to be the end of our backyard," she said. "Then I saw the trees go; they just disappeared one by one."

"It was really scary," she said.

Her husband's firm had moved the family to Wisconsin and had bought the house, so they were in no financial trouble over the erosion.

"But, it's still my home," she said.

They were having 300 tons of quarry stone laid along the shoreline at a cost of at least $3,000.

"I feel sorry for the private homeowner," she said.

Another Black Creek resident, Frank Carter, was stalwart about the erosion to his property.

An architect, he said, "I built on the lake and I will stay there."

When he built his home in 1963, there were 50 feet of frontage to the beach. Now, about eight feet are left.

There is a breakwater in front of the home and he said it will be built higher.

To the north of the city, at Cleveland, Jerome Thomas and his wife operate a nine-unit motel. The lake has claimed 30 feet of their beach and lawn area since November. There's no seawall in front of their property.

"We're at the mercy of Lake Michigan," the 43-year-old Thomas said. "A seawall would be too expensive to tackle on my own."

He had bought the motel five years ago, feeling it was a good investment.

Sheboygan Mayor Richard Suscha said Sheboygan County has suffered $250,000 damage so far from the high water erosion. Another $125,000 property is threatened, he said.

"There's no help for areas outside the city," realtor Richard Ballschmidt said. "They're really taking a beating."

The jumper, a term used for the earliest sleighs in Canada, was usually just a box mounted on wooden runners.

State GOP leader praises Nixon Watergate speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's address to the nation Monday night was a "welcome message that this sordid Watergate fiasco will be strongly and vigorously uncovered," says Minnesota Republican Chairman David Krogsgeng.

"The address coupled with the four resignations is indicative of the attitude that this administration has to get all the facts out and to clean up the mess," Krogsgeng said Tuesday in Washington, where he was attending a Republican leadership conference.

"As long as the Watergate situation hangs over our heads, it remains almost impossible for the Nixon administration to move ahead with the very important work of running our country," he added.

Expanded role—

Senate immunity may be granted Dean, Magruder

"He was not told that these two individuals had broken into the premises of the psychiatrist for Ellsberg until after this incident had taken place," the FBI report said. "Such activity was not authorized by him, he did not know about this burglary until after it had happened. He did not agree with this method of investigation and when he learned about the burglary he instructed them 'not to do this again.'"

It was learned the special Senate committee on Watergate is considering granting immunity from prosecution to both Dean and Magruder, who reportedly knew in advance of plans to wiretap the Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate building. Magruder refused Tuesday to give pretrial testimony in the Democrats' lawsuit over Watergate and his lawyer said it was because the Watergate grand jury is expected to return indictments.

In his speech on Watergate Monday, President Nixon said he had given Atty. Gen.-designate Elliot L. Richardson authority to name a special prosecutor in the affair.

The Senate, on a voice vote with only a handful of members present Tuesday, urged the President to do just that. A later move by Republicans to reconsider the vote on grounds that it was an expression of no-confidence in the President failed.

In other developments: • White House Press Secretary Ziegler publicly apologized to The Washington Post for harsh statements he made against the newspaper for its intensive investigation of Watergate. "I was over-enthusiastic in my comments ..." he said. "When we're wrong, we're wrong. I was in that case."

• The federal grand jury on Watergate heard from "a very important witness," assistant prosecutor Seymour Glazer said. Other Justice Department sources said indictments in the case are not imminent.

• Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said that, if President Nixon were involved in Watergate, he would prefer not to hear about it. "I am totally confident the President just would not be involved in any way in this kind of operation," Laird told reporters in Washington. "But, if he were, it would be very bad for the country—that kind of disclosure."

• Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina told a news conference that he believes Nixon had no advance knowledge of the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters. But, he added, "If the President was part of a conspiracy of that kind, then I could see where impeachment proceedings would be brought."

• Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who handed in his resignation Monday on grounds several friends may be implicated in Watergate, told a Law Day audience in Washington that Americans should not despair, because "we are a country of law ... and the law works its will."

• Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate committee probing Watergate, complimented Nixon for facing up publicly to the scandal of the case.

"Struggling for lasting peace," Brezhnev said, "we do not forget that forces hostile to peace have not laid down arms. We remember about the machinations of aggressive circles and maintain high vigilance. On the May Day holiday we send ardent greetings to the glorious men of our armed forces, firmly standing guard over peace."

It sounded ritual, however. Otherwise, the whole thrust was peace and prosperity. Brezhnev and his supporters are committed to the idea that building a strong economy means insuring future Soviet power and influence. They need better relations with the United States to help bring that about, and evidently want to keep the road clear of obstacles.

Watergate worrying—

Speech centers on peace moves

In any event, Brezhnev said nothing bellicose in his May Day address. On the contrary, newly adorned by a Lenin Peace Prize, the party chief waxed almost lyrical about the outlook for peace.

"The war in Vietnam ... has ended," he said, an observation that might surprise the Vietnamese. "Serious positive changes have been scored in Europe.... A turn from the cold war and dangerous tension is taking place, toward reasonable joint efforts to strengthen peace and development mutually advantageous cooperation."

Speaking of the United States, Brezhnev said only that Moscow approaches Washington, as it approaches others in the West, with a peaceful policy, hoping to "facilitate favorable development of Soviet-American relations on the principles of mutual respect and mutual advantage."

The party secretary did give a nod in the direction of the Soviet military, which harbors many a hard-nosed opponent of any policy that might tend to deflect wealth from the armed forces budget.

"Struggling for lasting peace," Brezhnev said, "we do not forget that forces hostile to peace have not laid down arms. We remember about the machinations of aggressive circles and maintain high vigilance. On the May Day holiday we send ardent greetings to the glorious men of our armed forces, firmly standing guard over peace."

It sounded ritual, however. Otherwise, the whole thrust was peace and prosperity. Olives will be in short supply in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Olives will be in shorter supply this year for salads, martinis and other (able) uses, according to the Agriculture Department.

"Table olive production in Greece and Spain totaled 371,900 tons last year, down 23 percent from 1971. The U.S. crop also was down last year, some 27,000 tons compared with 57,000 in 1971, according to a report by the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Profumo scandal

Like Nixon, MacMillan was kept in the dark

LONDON (AP) — "Nobody told me," Britain's prime minister complained 10 years ago. Harold Macmillan was neck deep in the Profumo scandal, and like President Nixon in the Watergate affair, insisted his aides kept all the facts from him.

Even hardened lawmakers looked stupefied as Macmillan told the House of Commons why he had no foreknowledge of the developments that exposed the affair his war minister, John Profumo, had been having with call-girl Christine Keeler.

The Kremlin knew of the affair because the assistant Soviet naval attaché in London, Capt. Eugene Ivanov, was also Christine's bedmate.

Other politicians, the secret service and certain key civil servants also knew what was going on. Some newsmen were

Stoppers put on four of Erlichman's plumber aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of John D. Erlichman's White House "plumbers" are in jail, one has quit without explanation, and the fourth is now a sub-Cabinet officer who won't talk to newsmen.

The "plumbers" were supposed to stop news leaks such as the Pentagon papers.

Erlichman has admitted to the FBI that at least two of the group were sent to spy out "emotional and moral problems" of Daniel Ellsberg, who had already admitted giving the secret Pentagon documents to newspapers.

They are E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, later convicted for their part in the Watergate wiretapping and burglary, and now alleged to have broken into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist months before the Watergate raid.

The other two "plumbers" are less well-known. David Young resigned his staff position at the National Security Council two or three weeks ago, with no announcement or explanation from the White House.

Egil "Bud" Krogh, 33, now holds a $42,500-a-year job as No. 2 man at the Transportation Department. He was unavailable for comment Tuesday after news of Erlichman's FBI interview.

Little is known about Young. A newsman who once met him recalls a pleasant, articulate fellow of about 30. No White House biography of him exists. He declined to speak to another newsman who telephoned him at his house this week.

Krogh, a strapping former naval officer and avid jogger, once worked in Erlichman's Seattle law firm. He followed his boss to the White House and involved himself in a variety of activities from efforts to control drug smuggling to setting up Amtrak.

Erlichman put this all-purpose aide in charge of the "plumbers" group when it was set up in July 1971, a month after the Pentagon papers were published.

Krogh, testifying under oath at hearings earlier this year on his nomination to be under-secretary, said he personally hired Liddy and Hunt. He met Liddy at the Treasury Department while the two were involved in antidrug efforts.

Hunt had been recommended by presidential counselor Charles W. Colson. Liddy was paid from Erlichman's payroll. Hunt received per diem compensation as a consultant.

Krogh said he exercised general supervision of the "plumbers," but didn't have day-to-day control.

"It was frequently I would discuss with Mr. Young the various things that they were doing but it was not a day-to-day business and my involvement ended for all practical purposes in October of 1971," he said. That date is a full month after Liddy and Hunt allegedly broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist looking for Ellsberg's confidential medical files.

Old friend was waiting

Replacement for Dean gave Nixon no trouble

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Nixon needed a friend to replace White House counsel John W. Dean III in the Watergate shakeup, he didn't have to look far.

Waiting in the wings was Leonard Garment, a member of Nixon's inner circle—one-time partner in Nixon's New York law firm and a veteran of the President's campaigns since 1966.

Garment has played a low-profile, effective role in the White House ever since the early days of the Nixon administration. He is more liberal than ousted aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, who overshadowed him.

A one-time jazz clarinetist with the Woody Herman Band, he is probably better known around Washington as Nixon's liaison with the arts than as a legal expert.

But Garment's assignments as the President's special consultant have tapped both his legal and artistic talents.

They have ranged from dealing with militant Indians who took over Alcatraz to arranging a White House musical salute to jazz musician Duke Ellington.

Nixon and Garment first met in 1965 when Nixon joined the New York law firm of Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander. Garment had been a member of the firm since his graduation from Brooklyn College in 1949 and a partner since 1957.

It was with a nucleus of friends, including members of the law firm, that Nixon began his political comeback after losses to John F. Kennedy in 1960 and to California Gov. Edmund Brown in 1962. Garment was among them and is credited with recommending a new member of the firm, John N. Mitchell, as a campaign manager for Nixon's 1968 presidential bid.

In the 1968 campaign, Garment was among Nixon's closest advisers, working with his speechwriters, advising on use of the media and acting as a talent scout and promoter for Nixon.

When Nixon became president, Garment went back briefly to the law firm while Mitchell became attorney general. But, in May 1969, Garment was named special consultant to the President with responsibilities in areas from civil rights to the arts.

There, he was far less influential than Haldeman and Ehrlichman. He played his part with missions to placate the Indians, meeting protesters at the White House gate and visiting U.S. bases in Europe to check on racial problems.

The son of immigrants, born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Garment will celebrate his 49th birthday May 11 in a suddenly spotlighted White House role. Along with Elliot L. Richardson, Nixon's nominee for attorney general, Garment has been given the assignment to pursue justice fairly and fully and "to speed truth's discovery" in the Watergate scandal.

Many industrial firms move to suburban areas

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Some 315 industrial firms moved from Minneapolis and St. Paul to the suburbs in the 1960-70 period compared with 90 between 1946 and 1959, a report of the Metropolitan Council shows.

The study indicating the dramatic jump in migration was based on a study of building permits for industrial projects valued at $25,000 or more.

It showed that 248 firms moved out of Minneapolis and 87 from St. Paul to the suburbs during the 1960-70 decade.

The migration is typical of what has happened in many aging cities which have lost out to the suburbs in retaining or attracting taxable property.

Among reasons for the trend given in the report were a "massive urban renewal" in both central cities in the early 1960s, the attempt by suburbs to attract new industrial base, new freeways and reduced travel time, as well as development of industrial parks.

It said those factors were unique in combination and probably would not occur again. The report explained why.

"The decade of the 1970s should show far less mobility on the part of industry due to tax equalization reforms which make industry less desirable from a tax standpoint, a filling up of industrial parks, an increase in congestion on existing freeways, the rising cost of land, a growing attitude that industry is 'not good' and a general tightening up on the uncontrolled spread of urban facilities."

Bloomington has been the most attractive to migrating firms. It lured more than 20 percent of the 315, while Golden Valley got some 12 percent and Roseville, Fridley and New Hope, some 6 percent each.

Among the suburbs alone there was considerable shifting. Of the 122 which moved, only Bloomington was able to attract about as many firms from other suburbs as it lost.

In the same decade, 151 new industrial firms located in suburban communities, while 30 located in the central cities.

Prices down in Milwaukee

Supermarkets wage meat war

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A meat price war among major supermarket chains here is developing into "an extremely hot market," one chain official said Tuesday.

"The prices certainly aren't justified based on costs," said Frank DeGeorge, a division manager for National Food Stores in Wisconsin. "We go as low as we think is necessary to stay competitive, but it's a big guessing game around here."

An Associated Press survey in 17 U.S. cities this week showed beef, lamb and pork prices were generally just as high or higher than they were during the nationwide meat boycott one month ago.

But in Milwaukee Tuesday,

Kohl's Food Stores, largest in sales in Wisconsin, was selling pork at 25 per cent below ceiling prices. The sale was to continue through the end of the week.

Immediately after the boycott, Kohl's had announced a 15 per cent cut in all fresh meat prices. Kohl's officials said each week of the two-week sale cost the firm $100,000.

Last week, Kohl's featured all beef at 20 per cent below ceiling prices, bringing sirloin steak to $1.38 per pound; round steak to 1.27; hamburger to 79 cents, and rib roast to $1.19.

In this week's pork sale, center cut pork chops are 88 cents per pound, pork steaks are 69 cents, and loin end pork roast 79 cents.

Customers are apparently taking full advantage.

"Last week we went through 20 boxes of pork, with five loins in a box. We've gone through 30 already by Tuesday, and we'll probably finish the week with 130 boxes," said Greg Witterholt, Milwaukee, a meat cutter at one Kohl's store.

The state's second-largest food chain in sales, Sentry Food Stores, is advertising present meat prices at 20 cents to 38 cents a pound less than ceiling prices for most cuts of beef.

Jewel also featured chuck Illinois chain which moved into Wisconsin recently, is featuring center cut pork chops at 78 cents a pound, or 67 cents below its ceiling price.

Jewel also featured chuck roast, rolled roast and country ribs at 21 cents to 31 cents below ceiling prices this week.

Jewel officials said they cut prices on 85 of the "most popular beef, veal, lamb and pork cuts."

DeGeorge said National's meat prices since the boycott had averaged about 1½ per cent below cost, without taking into consideration the store's labor and packaging costs.

He said he feared the meat price war here "could make people think we were at fault for high prices and we dropped them because of the boycott. I think it's an overreaction on the industry's part."

At Wounded Knee

Blackout imposed on talks

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — The government has imposed a news blackout on the status of negotiations with Indian militants who have held Wounded Knee for the past two months.

At the same time, a government spokesman said a rumor that federal forces would storm the village if there was no agreement by Friday "might be true."

"In the immediate days ahead, we are not going to entertain any questions on negotiations," Deputy Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard Hellstern told newsmen Tuesday.

Asked to respond to rumors that the government would invade Wounded Knee Friday if there was no progress in negotiations with the estimated 150 to 200 insurgents, Hellstern replied:

"That might be true. We've always considered the option of using force to settle the siege a viable one."

Talks were last held Saturday. The government said Monday it was trying to revive them.

Neither Hellstern nor Interior Department Solicitor Kent Frizell, the government's main negotiator, was available at nearby Pine Ridge Tuesday. Hellstern would not comment on their whereabouts, except to say they were on the Pine Ridge Reservation.

In other developments Tuesday, a South Dakota Indian reservation agreed to permit burial of one of the slain occupation members and militant leader Russell Means was returned to jail in South Dakota.

The Rosebud Tribal Council reversed itself and voted to permit the burial of Frank Clearwater on its reservation, 100 miles east of Wounded Knee.

The council had voted earlier Tuesday to prohibit the burial of Clearwater, and a court order to that effect was presented to the caravan of six cars and one hearse at the western edge of the reservation.

The caravan proceeded to Rosebud and confronted the tribal council.

"The people of this area feel that when we die, then we go home," said council President Webster Two Hawk, alluding to the fact that Clearwater had said he was an Apache and that only Rosebud Sioux could be buried on the reservation. The government has said Clearwater's name does not appear on any tribal rolls.

But the council decided to vote again on the question and, apparently to avoid violence, ruled that Clearwater may be buried on the reservation.

The burial was expected to take place today. The other occupation force member slain during the siege also was expected to be buried today.

The burial of Lawrence Lamont, 31, an Oglala Sioux and a Pine Ridge resident, was to be permitted at Wounded Knee. However, the government said only a limited number of family members would be permitted into the village.

Means was being held without bond in the Minnehaha County jail at Sioux Falls, S.D., after being returned from Los Angeles Tuesday.

He was arrested in Los Angeles Friday on a bench warrant issued after his bond was revoked. Means is charged with 11 counts in connection with the Feb. 27 takeover of Wounded Knee.

Churchman bars money aid to women's group

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Roman Catholics in the St. Paul-Minneapolis Archdiocese have been asked by their archbishop to exclude the Women's Counseling Service from any contributions they make to this week-end's Walk for Development.

Archbishop Coadjutor Leo C. Byrne's request Tuesday cited his church's stand on abortion. The Minneapolis counseling service has provided abortion referrals as part of one of its services.

"In view of our uncompromising and frequently repeated position on respect for life and our rejection of abortion, we are instructing all donors who share our convictions to indicate in writing the exclusion of this beneficiary from the contributions they make," said the archbishop's statement to the archdiocese.

Rachel Walker, a spokesman for the counseling service, said she agreed that donors to the walk should have a right to specify any organization they want excluded from their contributions. However, she said, the service is not an abortion group.

"We discuss with pregnant women who seek our counseling all the alternatives, including the possibility of adoption. But if a woman needs a name of a doctor or clinic for an abortion, we refer her — after she's made her own decision," she said.

Dave Hartwell, coordinator of the 30-mile walk that seeks $200,000 in contributions to 10 organizations, said a statement asking for exclusion of any particular beneficiary would be honored with any contribution.

The counseling service has been designated to receive 5.5 per cent of the contributions to the walk. This would be $11,000.

Elk callers plan world championship

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — A strong pair of lungs trained to attract bull elk could bring you a trophy at the World's Championship Elk Bugling Contest.

Henry Crew, chairman of the event, says the May 19 contest will be the first of its kind in the world.

He says duck and goose calling have been held for years elsewhere and have attracted up to 400 contestants.

Invitations have gone to guides and outfitter organizations, sportsmen's groups and other outdoors associations in nine states.

The contest will be coordinated with the Bonneville Sportsmen's Association Jamboree and the Civilian Sports Show.

Rules permit simulating the elk's mating call or challenging bugle by mouth or with a whistle.

Job-safety regulations create problems for small business

By BROOKS JACKSON

Associated Press Writer

In case you were wondering, Ralph Zuber's electrical outlets aren't orange. And the federal government won't make him paint them.

Nor will it force Zuber or any other employer to install split toilet seats or give up ice in drinking water.

Still, Congress remains in a mood to pull some teeth from the two-year-old job-safety act that supposedly was bothering Zuber and a lot of other small businessmen.

Zuber is manager of a 15-man custom furniture shop in Amana, Iowa. In a recent national news story, he and other small businessmen were quoted as being worried, perplexed and angry about the Occupational Safety and Health Act, OSHA, they felt, imposed regulations that were often expensive and petty.

Zuber reportedly said, "I want to comply, but I've got to make a living. Did you know we've even got to paint the electrical outlets orange? Why, I don't know."

Zuber now says he can't remember saying that. Anyway, there's no requirement that electrical sockets be painted orange, or any other color.

Furthermore, Zuber says, he supports the job-safety act, even though it's costing him around $20,000 to do such things as replace ungrounded electric hand tools, install emergency cut-off switches on some power machinery and install guards on power saw blades.

"We needed something like this," he said. "But they have to use common sense. You can't do these things overnight."

Like most other small businessmen, Zuber never has had a visit from one of the Labor Department's 550 job-safety inspectors. With five million workplaces to inspect, chances are it would take them years to reach Zuber unless a fatal accident or employee safety complaint puts him on the inspection list.

Nevertheless, Congress is receiving howls from plenty of small businessmen who don't like OSHA. "It's just fear," says Herbert Liebenow, legislative vice president for the National Small Businessmen's Association. "They only hear the horror stories."

He says a poll of his members shows they are more worried about OSHA than anything else, even taxes.

Congress has the message. Last year it voted twice to exempt millions of small businessmen from the safety standards. But both times President Nixon vetoed the spending bill to which the exemption was attached as a rider. So virtually all employers still are covered.

This year few expect that Congress will approve an exemption again, but even OSHA's friends are willing to soften its bite on business somewhat. And the law's old critics are pressing for nothing less than an extensive de-fanging, including an end to most mandatory fines and a provision that would divert many inspectors to handling out advice instead of fines.

Not all the criticism of OSHA is undeserved. Officials concede they blundered when, in their initial rush to get safety standards written, they adopted out-moded rules calling for split toilet seats and banning ice in drinking water. These have been rescinded.

And businessmen aren't the only ones with complaints about OSHA. Labor unions complain there are too few men and too little money to properly enforce standards.

"Aside from underfunding, aside from lack of inspectors, its direction will always be 'Go easy on the employer,'" adds Anthony Mazzocchi of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers.

Of the 32,701 employers inspected last year, 29 per cent were found to have no violations, and the rest were assessed an average fine of $99. Employers contested only one fine in 20.

Meanwhile, OSHA tries to concentrate its scanty resources on the most nettlesome problems. Last year it devoted 10 per cent of its time to investigating fatal accidents, 15 per cent to investigating safety complaints by workers and 38 per cent to particularly hazardous industries.

And in a year when the administration is trimming back many programs, OSHA plans to hire a few more people and increase its $68.7 million budget by another million. It plans to increase the number of inspections to 55,000 this year and 80,000 next.

Perhaps Ralph Zuber's shop will be among them.

Winona County Court

Civil, Criminal Division
Patrick A. Lagoon, 18, White Bear Lake, Minn., and Ann Monahan, 22, Rollingstone, Minn., appeared on charges of trespassing in Prairie Island Park where they were arrested by Winona police at 11:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Judge Dennis A. Challen questioned the validity of the charge and continued the case until 9 a.m. next Wednesday. He ordered the $25 bond posted by Miss Monahan to be returned and released both on their own recognizance. Lagoon had spent the night in the city jail when he was unable to post bond.
Matthew Kelly, a St. Mary's College student from Lombard, Ill., paid a $25 fine after pleading guilty to a charge of disregarding a stop sign. He was arrested at 9:55 p.m. April 13 at Gilmore Avenue and Villa Street. A charge on a warrant for failure to appear in court against Kelly was dismissed by the judge.

A warrant was ordered for Richard King, 222 Vine St., for failure to appear in court on a shoplifting charge which occurred last Sept. 5. Court services officer James Heinlein told the court that King had refused to cooperate regarding the voluntary work portion of his sentence and was now being held by Buffalo County, Wis., authorities on another charge.

County vetoes new bridge to Ettrick

ETTRICK, Wis. (Special) — The erection of a bridge leading to Ettrick from Highway 53, on CTH D, was vetoed by the county board at its April meeting. The old bridge, over the Beaver Creek, is nearly 90 years old and has been closed for some time.

There are two other entrances to the village, one on the south side from Highway 53 west of the village, and one from the north, from Highway 53, to a county trunk road.

Police probing theft of cycle

Nancy Casperson, 25 1/2 W. 4th St., reported to city police the theft of her motorcycle between 1 and 2 a.m. this morning.

According to John Scherer, assistant chief, the vehicle was parked adjacent to her residence. The cycle is described as a gold-colored Honda, Model CB 350, Minnesota license MC 43066.

A 1958 MODEL automobile was reported stolen from John Smered, 377 Main St., shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday. Scherer said the vehicle was found parked at the Key Apartments, 1254 Randall St., shortly before midnight by friends of Smered. The car was not damaged and was returned to the owner.

Gorman Winston, 1257 Lake Blvd., reported two broken windows in his home while he was absent between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. A small rock was found inside the home. Damage is estimated at $18.50.

Mrs. Charles Russeau, 722 Gilmore Ave., reported the theft of several items of camping equipment from her garage.

SHE HAD discovered last February that the lock on the garage door had been forced open but could find nothing missing at that time. Saturday, the family was gathering camping equipment and found the following items to be missing:

Four sleeping bags, one camp stove, three lawn chairs and a pair of waders. The items are valued at $170.

Scherer reported that a bicycle reported stolen by Jeff Willgen, 945 W. King St., had been recovered by police. The bike is valued at $68.

Power firm gets interim rate increase approval

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. was granted an interim rate increase Tuesday that will cost the utility's residential electric customers 68 cents per month, a utility spokesman said.

Gas customers would pay an estimated additional 65 cents per month.

The increase, approved by the state Public Service Commission, was for 75 per cent of Wisconsin Michigan's original request.

Based on the firm's estimated level of 1973 operations, the approval was for an additional $1.3 million in annual retail electric rates and $10,200 in annual retail gas rates.

The utility serves about 105,000 customers in East Central Wisconsin, Northern Wisconsin and Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Rates for water service provided by the city of Arcadia were last revised in 1965, when the gross plant investment was $351,157. The utility's gross plant investment as of Dec. 31, 1972, is $665,416.

Board of Adjustment faces routine meet

John Denzer, 478 W. Howard St., requested a variance to build a house addition within 18 inches of his rear yard. Standard is 30 feet.

Richard Weinmann, 958 W. King St., asked to build within 15 inches of his west side lot line for a carport. Standard is six feet.

Man dies in fall at grain elevator

To your health 'Cold sores' are in the wrong place

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes "cold sores" to appear within a radius of six or eight inches in the same area of the body? I have been getting them in a most inconvenient place to apply medication, the back uppermost part of the thigh.

They sometimes appear at intervals of six months, more or less, and sometimes before one has healed another has started within an inch or so.

What causes them and is there any way to stop this trouble? Doctors have given me ointments. — R.M.L.

I'd call this trouble herpes, or recurrent herpes, rather than "cold sores" which is a term used for such sores near or on the lip.

It is difficult for me to try to be very sure what some trouble is without seeing the patient, but in this case I would suggest a probability: a dormant virus. In other words, it is very similar to shingles, but with the virus having periods of inactivity, then becoming active and affecting a nerve root in the area.

Why does it stay quiet for a time, then break out? Probably because of some temporary lowering of your resistance, whether from fatigue or some other elusive factor. Some women have a similar trouble that breaks out during the menstrual period.

Various remedies are favored by different physicians to relieve itching or pain, but the fact remains that we have no specific medication to overcome virus diseases. The one optimistic thought to keep in mind is that the body itself in time usually conquers the virus even though we have no specific way of doing it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We would like some information on stomach hernia. At first we thought my husband might be having trouble with his gall bladder, but X rays didn't show anything wrong. So his doctor said he'd like to see X rays of his stomach and they were taken. Over the phone he said these X rays showed a hernia at the top of the stomach. We would like a little more on this type of hernia. — J.E.C.

It's not actually a hernia of the stomach, but a hernia (or enlargement) of an aperture where the gullet passes through the diaphragm. This is at the juncture of the esophagus and top of the stomach.

Your trouble is that this condition goes by so many names: "stomach hernia," as you call it, or hiatal hernia, or hiatus hernia, or even "upside-down stomach," which is a misnomer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible that a woman can give birth to her husband's child 10½ months after her husband's death? I have never heard of any woman being pregnant 10½ months. Sometimes they may have their babies three or four days ahead, or a little over time with the first, but not this long. — Mrs. C.P.K.

The average is nine months (265 to 285 days covers most) but whether you've heard of it or not, there are extreme variations from this on record. Earliest premature babies with a chance of surviving require about 26 weeks; there are cases of "post-mature" babies born at 46 weeks — which is about the 10½ months you mention. Both extremes are rare but they have occurred.

Tough year seen ahead for nation's largest retail grocery

By JOHN CUNNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Last year was a very tough year for the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., the nation's largest food retailer. This year could be a critical one.

Nothing sums up the problems more than the financial results, and they were poor. The final quarter report, just released, brought the net loss for the year to $51.3 million, worst in recent history for the 114-year-old company.

Because of the losses, the company was forced for the first time since 1925 to omit a quarterly dividend, breaking a chain of events that is one of the most meaningful assurances of wealthy, conservative investors.

The price of its stock, which was as high as $65 in 1961, is now $13.25. Many stockholders are understandably unhappy, of course, and even Huntington Hartford, heir to an A&P fortune and noted for investments that fail to pay, has criticized management as inefficient.

In the name of efficiency, it was forced to close more than 400 stores, although it opened about 80 more for the same reason. In the process, it lost—but later regained—its position as the nation's biggest food retailer.

It took radical means to accomplish that feat, however, and as the sluggish giant struggled to regain its power, management was challenged by Gulf & Western Industries, which sought to win disaffected stockholders to its side with an offer for 3.75 million shares.

G&W attracted more than that amount, perhaps as much as 19 per cent, but management won a court order against the tender offer's becoming effective. Still, the battle for ownership, combined with that for survival, was a bitter experience.

Meanwhile, as if problems weren't sufficient for management, its allegedly low-cost WEO campaign—"Where economy originates"—was begun almost simultaneously with an explosion in food prices.

In fighting to regain lost sales, it waged what smaller competitors called a vicious fight, selling some items at prices these competitors claimed were destined to drive them out of business.

While that charge cannot be demonstrated conclusively, it did force smaller chains into the red and united many of them in seeking innovative merchandising methods to slam back at the common enemy.

The sleeping giant acquired the reputation as the giant bully, and other retailers are not only predicting but anticipating the day when, with their greater agility and flexibility, they can retaliate.

One thing is certain: Some competing chains have been forced to review their policies, to improve marketing and eliminate inefficiencies, and therefore are more competitive than a year ago. They want their customers back.

A&P's major predicament remains: Profits are the one fundamental goal of all businesses, and A&P doesn't have them.

With a network of nearly 4,000 stores in 35 states, the District of Columbia and Canada, it has demonstrated an ability to haul in the cash. But it still hasn't shown that it can keep profits from slipping back through the net.

While management reportedly was prepared to suffer great losses in turning its stores into discount operations, it also sought a return to profitability by the close of 1972. It failed, and so the doubts remain.

The big retailer proved it could recapture its sales lead from Safeway Stores. Safeway, enjoying a good year, pushed gross income to $6.1 billion but failed to reach A&P's $6.37 billion pace.

But even the newsboy knows that the payoff isn't in sales. Safeway floated in profits of more than $91 million last year, while A&P sank in the red. This is the year it must prove itself.

Shirley Maclaine meets Chou's wife

TOKYO (AP) — Actress Shirley Maclaine has met the wife of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and a niece of Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung in Peking, a Chinese broadcast reported today.

Miss Maclaine began a three-week tour of China on April 20, heading a group of 11 other women on a mission to study women's role in Chinese society.

A broadcast from the official Chinese Hsinhua News Agency said the Americans met Mrs. Teng Ying-chao, wife of the Chinese premier, and Wang Hai-jung, Mao's 31-year-old niece, Tuesday on a visit to Chungshan Park as part of the May Day celebrations.

Court denies bail reduction in murder case

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — A motion for a reduction of bail in a first-degree murder case here was denied after a 2½-hour hearing Tuesday.

Carl F. Giese, 29, Black River Falls, had sought reduction of his $50,000 bail. He is accused in the March 19 stabbing death of his wife, Judy, 26.

Defense attorney John Ward had unsuccessfully sought the bail reduction from Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Lowell Schonegarth, calling 19 witnesses to testify concerning Giese's character.

Giese had earlier pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of mental disease or defect, and Judge Schonegarth cited that plea in refusing to lower bail. He also pointed out the seriousness of the charge and a lower court's preliminary hearing ruling that there is probable cause to believe Giese may have committed the crime.

The bail reduction plea may be reviewed after two psychiatric reports ordered have been completed, the judge said.

Jackson County District Attorney Robert Radcliffe prosecuted.

Witnesses called by Ward Tuesday included: the Rev. Tom Heyd of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Black River Falls; Dr. Darrel Strandberg, Alma Center veterinarian; Harold Shriber, area insemurator of the Tri-State Breeders Cooperative; Mrs. Donald Olson of the Farmers Home Administration office; Douglas McDonald, industrial arts teacher at Black River Falls; Richard Elrod, mathematics teacher at Black River Falls Junior High; Dave Mack, mathematics teacher in the junior high school; Thomas Ristuben, driver-salesman for a local petroleum company and a neighbor of the defendant; Rufus Dimmick, manager of the First Federal Savings and Loan Company, Black River Falls; Joe Arneson, area milk hauler from Taylor; William Meyer, loan officer of the Jackson County Bank, Black River Falls; Richard Erickson, branch manager of the Production Credit Association, Black River Falls; Jerry Proft, executive vice president, Bank of Melrose; Alan Peterson, Chevrolet-Olds dealer, Black River Falls; Neal Duxbury, 1st Ward alderman, Black River Falls, and a lifelong friend of the family; Donald Berg, Jackson County zoning administrator; Jackson County Sheriff George Johnson, who said Giese has abided by all rules at the jail, and the defendants' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Giese, Alma Center.

Two accidents in Goodview being probed

An apparent hit-run accident that happened sometime Monday night or early Tuesday is being investigated by Goodview authorities.

Goodview Marshal Merlin Iverson said that Albert J. Schloegel, 4820 6th St., Goodview, reported that his 1965 model sedan had been parked at his residence at about 8:15 p.m. Monday and at 8 a.m. Tuesday it was discovered that it had been struck by an unidentified vehicle.

Damage to the left rear of the parked car was estimated at $200.

Heavy rain was cited as a contributing factor in a two-car accident that happened at 8:15 p.m. Monday at 3900 Service Dr., in Goodview.

Iverson said that Fritz Fankhauser, Independence, Wis., Rt. 1, was driving a 1965 model sedan west on Service Drive when it and a 1965 model station wagon began backed out of her driveway by Mrs. Gordon Matthews, 3900 Service Dr., collided.

Damage to the right rear of the station wagon was estimated at $175 and to the right side of the Fankhauser car $350.

There were no injuries, Iverson said.

Heavy rains threaten to increase flooding

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Heavy rains Tuesday in northern Missouri, Iowa and Illinois threatened increased flooding downriver today along the still-swollen but receding Mississippi River.

Predictions of more rainfall and higher tides in the Gulf of Mexico also added to flooding problems in Louisiana.

At St. Louis, the river district office of the National Weather Service was preparing new crest forecasts today for the Mississippi. The forecasts are based on rainfall reports.

Eleven deaths have been reported since the floods began and an estimated 11 million acres in seven states—much of it prime farmland—are still under water. The Mississippi River Commission estimates damage thus far in the seven states declared disaster areas at more than $322 million. The seven states are Arkansas, Louisiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois and Mississippi.

North of St. Louis, the Corps of Army Engineers predicted that the river would crest a fourth time this spring and reach 25-foot levels Thursday at Hannibal, Mo., and Quincy, Ill.

The river stood at 23.8 feet Tuesday at Hannibal, where flood stage is 16 feet. At Quincy, where flood stage is 17 feet, the river level was 23.4 feet.

A river district spokesman said Tuesday night that he could not yet tell if the one to three inches of rain dumped on Iowa and Illinois Tuesday would push the rivers over record crests set last week.

"It will take appreciably more rain than has already been reported to bring the rivers up to levels that will approach the recent record crests," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the New Orleans weather service office forecast tides three feet higher than normal in the Gulf, blaming southerly winds for the resulting hampering of normal drainage along the coast.

The weather service predicted "considerable tidal flooding due to overflow from many bayous and canals in southern Louisiana."

The river established a record crest of 45.6 feet Tuesday at Cape Girardeau, Mo., 13.6 feet over flood stage. And the Missouri River continued falling.

The only active flood-fighting reported Tuesday centered along the Illinois River near Grafton and along the Mississippi near Miller City, Ill., south of Cape Girardeau.

Six Coast Guard boats were requested to ferry sandbags and National Guardsmen to weakened spots in a levee along the Illinois near Grafton, where the Mississippi and Illinois converge.

North and South America are joined together by one unending mountain chain with three names. It is the Andes in South America, the Sierra Madre in Mexico and the Rockies in the U.S. and Canada.

Two Winonans hurt in Red Wing crash

RED WING, Minn. — Two Winonans were injured in a one-car crash here at 9:54 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Highway 61 and Spring Creek Road.

Mrs. Violet Gueltzow, 160 E. Howard St., is reportedly in good condition at St. John's Hospital here and will be transferred to Winona Community Memorial Hospital either today or Thursday.

Hospital authorities said this morning that Mrs. Gueltzow is being treated for a fractured pelvis and other possible injuries as yet undetermined.

Arthur Moore, 1666 Gilmore Ave., driver of the vehicle, was treated for facial cuts at the hospital and then released.

The Moore vehicle was headed west on Highway 61 and Moore told Red Wing police that a car ahead of him slowed and he applied the brakes. His vehicle apparently went out of control, crossed the oncoming traffic lane and crashed into a drainage ditch between the eastbound lane of the highway and a service road.

Damage to the Moore vehicle, a 1966 model sedan, was estimated at $800.

Mabel postman appointed to Brownsville

MABEL, Minn. (Special) — The appointment of Robert T. Bacon, Mabel, as postmaster at Brownsville, Minn., has been announced by K. O. William Sandberg, manager, Minneapolis-St. Paul district U.S. Postal Service.

In accordance with the merit selection procedures of the postal reorganization act, Bacon was nominated by the regional management selection board and appointed by Postmaster General E. T. Klassen.

A graduate of Mabel high school, Bacon attended college at Bowling Green, Ohio; Winona State College and the University of Minnesota. He served in the Navy from 1943 until 1946 and prior to his appointment as Brownsville postmaster was a distributor and window clerk serving the Mabel community.

He and his wife, the former Arlene Soberg, have two daughters, Rebecca and Joan.

Norwegian exports to the United States increased 17 per cent in 1972 over the previous year.

Volunteers

This is a weekly column listing city and area organizations needing volunteers.

For those who would donate a portion of their time in helping others, there are several opportunities.

Any organization, institution or individual may submit brief information for the column. Requests to include telephone information will be considered on an individual basis.

The following is a list of opportunities for service in the Winona Volunteer Services Program. Winona Volunteer Services is a federation of seven volunteer groups: Teen Corps, Home Delivered Meals, Your Emergency Service (Y.E.S.), FISH, Youth Action Council (Y.A.C.), Help Other People Everywhere (H.O.P.E.) and Famine Foods. If you can help in one of these positions, or in many others not listed, please call 452-5591.

EMERGENCY AID — Volunteers are needed to be on call one day per month to provide help for their neighbors in emergency situations. Emergency assistance is most often requested in the areas of meal preparation (with another volunteer), transportation, babysitting, locating needed articles on short notice and acting as a referral source for professional assistance. Volunteers are scheduled one month in advance on a day that is convenient for them.

RECEPTIONISTS — Winona Volunteer Services has a need for volunteer receptionists. Duties include meeting the public and answering phone inquiries. Receptionists will be located at the Volunteer Services House at 109 W. Broadway. People are needed between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

TRANSPORTATION AIDES — Volunteers are needed to provide transportation for others to help them receive the proper care and services they need. Transportation assistance falls into two areas: Local: Volunteers in this category are called on to provide transportation within the Winona-Goodview area. Area-wide: Volunteers are called on to bring people from other towns into Winona for their needs or to bring people in Winona County to places outside the county for necessary purposes. Volunteers in this category are called on the average of once or twice per month.

FRIENDLY VISITORS — Mature people of any age are needed for this visitation program. Volunteers are assigned to people whose emotional or physical well-being is impaired by problems associated with age, illness, injury, loneliness or other misfortune.

Fights rage in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese troops and Palestinian guerrillas battled with machine guns and automatic weapons in the streets around a refugee camp on the southwest side of Beirut today.

Thousands of rounds of fire were exchanged in the fighting. It appeared that the army was trying to force the release of two corporals kidnapped by the guerrillas and believed held in the Sabra-Shatila camp.

Political sources said the Palestinians apparently seized the two soldiers to pressure the government into releasing nine guerrillas arrested on Monday.

There was no accurate report of casualties.

Reporting from a vantage point near the camp, Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen said mortar fire and the crunch of hand grenades could be heard.

The guerrillas said they fired armor piercing weapons at army tanks and armored cars, which they said began taking up positions early today around the camp. Authorities believe the two kidnapped soldiers are held there.

The fighting spread from the camp environs to other nearby areas. Drivers braked their cars desperately and turned away. Pedestrians dove for cover.

Jensen said the firing broke out in one area and then shifted to another as the guerrillas made hit-and-run attacks on the troops.

Thick clouds of smoke billowed over the camp.

Several truckloads of armed troops in battle dress took up positions at the U.S. Embassy, strengthening an already heavy guard. An army command post was set up there.

As news of the fighting spread, office workers left for home early or rushed to schools to pick up their children.

The guerrillas said the two corporals had been kidnapped by the Maoist Popular Democratic Front, and they had agreed to hand them over at noon. But the guerrillas said the fighting broke out just before that hour.

Yasir Arafat, the head of Al Fatah and the chief guerrilla leader, told the army the soldiers would not be handed over until the troops lifted their siege of the refugee camp. Guerrilla sources said contact was broken after that, and the guerrilla leaders were unable to contact the army command or the presidential palace.

NEW YORK-BOUND . . . Howard Tomashek, Winona sculptor, will exhibit nine of his steel sculptures in an art show at Kettler Galleries, New York, for a two-week show in June. The artist began steel sculpting in 1963 and since that time has participated in numerous art shows and has sold more than 200 pieces of his work. He was recently awarded a first place in the adult division of the Festival of Religious Arts juried art show at Central United Methodist Church. (Daily News photo)

Winona sculptor to exhibit work in New York art show

Howard Tomashek, 717 Harriet St., will exhibit nine of his steel sculptures at a New York art show in June. The sculptures will be on display in the Kettler Galleries, New York City, for a two-week show.

Tomashek, a graduate of St. Mary's College, has studied art through the Winona Art Group and with James Heinlen and also did some work on the Famous Artists Course. He also studied at Winona State College. He began doing sculpture in 1963 and has sold more than 200 pieces of steel work since that time in art shows and galleries in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A native of Winona, Tomashek recently received a first-place award in the adult division of the juried art show of the Festival of Religious Arts held at Central United Methodist Church.

He has exhibited his work at shows in Winona, Rochester, Minneapolis, St. Paul, St. Louis Park and White Bear Lake, Minn., and La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee and New Richmond, Wis. One of his sculptures was chosen from among a field of 2,500 to be entered in the annual Red River Valley exhibition in Winnipeg, Manitoba. He also received a ribbon at a religious art festival in St. Paul and an award of excellence at the Dakota County Fine Arts Fair.

Sculptures for the New York show will be shipped May 10. Anyone who wishes to see the work may call for an appointment before that time.

Couple wed in Lutheran ceremony

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special) — Miss Karen Williams and Randal Henriksen were united in marriage in an April 28 ceremony at North Prairie Lutheran Church, Lanesboro. The Rev. Melvin Sucher officiated, with Mrs. Melvin Sucher, organist, and Mrs. Donald Tangen, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Williams, Lanesboro, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Henriksen, Rosemount, Minn.

THE BRIDE wore a floor-length gown of imported organza with empire bodice of Venice lace. Matching lace accented the shepherdess sleeves and hemline of the gown which extended into a deep flounce. Her mantilla veil was also edged with lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses, stephanotis and baby's-breath. Miss Susan Blakstad was maid of honor, with Mrs. David Kissinger and Miss Peggy Henriksen as bridesmaids. Their gowns were of green, blue and lavender in the same style as the bridal gown. Their headpieces were cascading layers of veiling edged in lace and they carried bouquets of yellow roses, white carnations, baby's-breath and ivy.

SHARI NELSON was flower girl and Troy Williams was ring bearer.

Best man was Daniel Shanahan, with David Kissinger and Michael Shanahan as groomsmen. Ushers were Don Williams, Gary Weathers and Craig Nelson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors.

The bride is a graduate of Lanesboro High School and, prior to her marriage, was employed by the Mayo Clinic. Her husband is a graduate of Beloit, Wis., Memorial High School and is employed by W. V. Nelson Construction, St. Paul. The couple will live in Rosemount.

Open house

PLAINVIEW, Minn. — Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Becker, Plainview, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Methodist Church parlors, Plainview. Children of the couple will host the event. Friends and relatives are invited to attend. No invitations have been sent.

Elbow-to-elbow should not hurt cheek-to-cheek

DEAR ABBY: Would you advise a husband and wife to work together every day? My husband is opening a new business and a lot of people have told me we might get tired of each other if we're together all day and all night. We get along very well.

Dear Abby:
By Abigail Van Buren

I am a bookkeeper and receptionist so it's not like we'd be elbow-to-elbow all day long. CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: If you get along well together, and aren't elbow-to-elbow all day long, there's no reason why it shouldn't work out. Some married couples who are nose-to-nose all day enjoy being cheek-to-cheek all night, while others who are apart all day would be happier apart all night, too.

DEAR ABBY: This is my opinion of your answer to the mother of the married daughter with five children. "Mother" said her daughter's husband earns a very modest living, can't feed and clothe his family properly, and can't pay his bills. "Mother" was upset because her husband refused to help out because their son-in-law gives 10 percent of all his earnings to his church.

Your answer was typical of the over-zealous religious fanatic. You said, "Surely you can't fault a man for honoring a commitment to the church!"

Why not? The son-in-law obviously thinks more of his church than he thinks of his family.

To top it off, you advised "Mother" to go against her husband's wishes and "dip into the sugar bowl" and help this family anyway.

I sure hope the father-in-law wrote and told you where to get off. NAUSEATED IN CINCINNATI

DEAR NAUSEATED: He didn't. But quite a few others did, and I had it coming. Many readers pointed out that a man's first obligation is to his family, and if he can't support them adequately (not luxuriously, but adequately) he should offer his personal services to the church in lieu of money. (Now, why didn't I think of that? I'll take 10 lashes with an old prayer shawl.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for many years and have never seen my problem discussed. When my husband and I were married, a friend suggested that we could have a nice sum for retirement if we would put a quarter in a box every time we made love.

As retirement time approaches I find that the coins aren't plunking into the box the way they once did. In fact, so far this year they've only been plunked twice.

With inflation and all, the way it is I suggested that my husband put a $20 bill in the box every time from now on. The way things are going he would have to pay only a couple of times a year. TROUBLED IN TRENTON

DEAR TROUBLED: Between the rise of inflation and the fall of the plunking, it should average out like old times.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend called me this morning and said, "If I asked you to marry me last night, I must have been stoned." How would you have answered him? MARY BETH

DEAR MARY BETH: I'd have said, "And if I said 'Yes,' I must have been crazy."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY . . . Mrs. Anna Gunderson, right, extends congratulations to her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Godfred Gunderson, Osseo, Wis., on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. The couple were honored at an open house at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Strum, Sunday. Mrs. Anna Gunderson, who is a resident of the Strum Nursing Home, recently celebrated her 92nd birthday. Gunderson's nine brothers and sisters and their families were among the guests at the Sunday event. (Mrs. Cyrus Nelson photo)

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

For THURSDAY, May 3

Your birthday today: Brings pioneering spirit to your daily life. Patience is a hard-to-learn virtue. Relationships are steady through moments of adversity. Today's natives have strong personal magnetism seldom projected fully.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Creative but impractical schemes are the order of the day, some are intricate enough to be works of art.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Personal affairs run at such a pace that crowding is likely—you have conflicting appointments and delicate negotiations to settle.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): People who love you offer resistance, argument, but eventually cooperate. Official, influential people work with you more readily.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You'll be proud you contain your restless impatience as well as you do. Plan your time carefully, have an alternate course to follow.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The job at hand provides enough discussion without getting into complex, outside issues. If you can divide your work, do so, let others help.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In variable conditions, remain steady and calm as you listen carefully for a clue for what is most important.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The middle may offer special advantages — you get to know both sides as people and issues.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Having faced reality and possibly a vexing problem, you turn a corner late today. Routines and special deeds mesh to put you ahead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There's more humoring than persuading — take it slowly and gently. Divide activities so everybody can participate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make sure your projects leave plenty of time and space for others to move quickly. The doings of young people come to attention.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be glad you asked before making an involved declaration—associates and family may have a different view.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Being well-mannered shouldn't mean letting friends pry into your personal concerns. Your casual comments could provoke mischief.

Milwaukee woman held in drug transporting case

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mrs. Rose Cooper, 32, of Milwaukee, Wis. was held to the Shelby County grand jury Tuesday on charges of transporting $31,000 worth of heroin to Memphis.

General Sessions Judge W. David Stinson set bond at $50,000.

Sgt. T. Y. Wright of the Metro Narcotics Division told Stinson at a hearing that Mrs. Cooper was arrested early Tuesday at the South Memphis home of her brother.

Officers recovered 78 grams of heroin, 63 grams of cocaine and several pep pill capsules during the investigation, Wright said.

Mrs. Cooper was in custody at Shelby county jail Tuesday night in lieu of bond, police said.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dr. James K. Robinson, Progressive Republican party candidate for governor in 1942, died Tuesday after a heart attack. He was 79.

Robinson, a dentist, moved to Milwaukee from Michigan in 1916, and became director of the Jefferson County Home for the Aged in 1970.

In 1942, he drew one of the biggest primary election votes in state history for a losing candidate in a gubernatorial race.

He helped found the Wisconsin Progressive Republican party.

Bloomington is quietly working on a stadium solution

By PAT THOMPSON
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — While fate of the proposed Minneapolis dome and stadium predicaments of the Minnesota Vikings and Twins are being banded about, the City of Bloomington is quietly working on a plan that could provide a solution.

"We're not through with it," said Mayor James M. King. "We're doing some work on it quietly. I supposed you could say it's behind the scenes."

King did not specifically outline the Bloomington plan but talked about some alternatives.

"Ultimately I think the Vikings will play in a facility built by Bob McNulty and financed by the North Star Financial Corp.," King said. "I think the Twins have to be considered and their facilities improved as well."

McNulty, a North Star board member, designed the Metropolitan Sports Center and constructed it in less than a year.

However, presentation of such a plan or others by Bloomington and its sister suburb of Richfield will not be made until final decision is reached on the proposed $53 million dome.

Backers say the downtown facility is doomed, but it apparently will not be buried until a June 15 charter revision referendum asking that any city projects costing more than $15 million be submitted to the voters. Polls have indicated the stadium issue will be soundly turned back.

"I frankly don't expect much to happen before June 1," said

King. "The next move is up to the Vikings. I guess up to this point we kind of work in a vacuum and I'm just not going to operate in that fashion anymore. As soon as the agreement with the city is terminated and the Vikings indicate to us they desire to sit down, we can work out the alternatives. Hopefully we can do this in cooperation with Minneapolis."

In the meantime, the stadium issue remains at an impasse while both the Vikings and Twins express dissatisfaction with Metropolitan Stadium. There even have been mild indications that both pro clubs may be forced to move out of the area if they do not get improvements when their lease expires at the Met after the 1975 baseball and football seasons.

"There have been no new proposals—no one has offered anything new," said Max Winter, Viking president. "I wouldn't know what Calvin Griffith wants for the Twins, but we do not have enough seats."

With a maximum capacity of 49,700 after temporary bleachers are installed at the end of baseball season, the Vikings still have the smallest crowds in the National Football League.

The Twins are willing to continue sharing the Met.

"I can see the possibility of the Vikings selling or moving the team if they don't get a place with more capacity," said Griffith, Twins' president,

"We need a lot of improvements, too. We need the dome to overcome the weather situation."

Griffith indicated that revenue losses may force the Twins to look at playing some early season games in the South after the current contract expires at the end of 1975.

"They're playing ball in Florida," said Griffith. "Even if our field had been dry yesterday (Tuesday) we could not have played because of the cold."

Winter was asked if the Vikings would ever be moved and he replied with "You said it, I didn't."

Gerald L. Moore, chairman of the Metropolitan Sports Area Commission that oversees operations of the Met facilities, doesn't believe the Twins and Vikings would ever leave Minnesota.

"I just can't believe they would leave this very lucrative area," Moore said. "I can't believe either the National Football League or major league baseball would allow them to leave this area. I can't imagine Max Winter, who has grown up and is a part of Minnesota, ever advocating a move out of the Twin Cities. I do think we've got to do something to make better facilities for them."

Financing improvements is the major step toward settling the question.

"We've had some good concepts that various people have come up with regards to other means of financing," said King.

"They all look kind of exciting. It's a question of whether or not we will be able to put a financial package together. We'll pretty much try to keep the public out of it...much in the same fashion as the North Stars financed their own building."

The Bloomington mayor was asked how soon things could swing into motion after the downtown stadium question was settled.

"Bob McNulty has told us repeatedly, 'All the Vikings have to do is say build us a football facility and I'll be digging tomorrow,'" King said. "The man has a track record that when he says he'll begin construction immediately, I believe

Brewers are in first

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers didn't win the pennant Tuesday night. They just acted like it.

"Way to go, John Briggs!" whooped Manager Del Crandall, who acted like it most of all after Briggs, with a three-run triple in the third inning and a home run leading off the ninth, had powered the Brewers past the defending world champion Oakland A's 4-3.

The victory lifted the Brewers into first place by half a game in the American League East; first time ever except for an opening day the four and a fraction year old, once nearly bankrupt franchise has been that high.

The Brewers streamed from their dugout to greet Briggs in the mist at home plate after the burly outfielder had lined Blue Moon Odom's first pitch of the ninth inning, a breaking ball, into the right field seats.

The crowd of 8,833, held down by rain that had forced a 24 minute delay in the third inning and threatened to wash out Briggs' triple, stomped and cheered for minutes when it was announced the victory, along with Baltimore's defeat, had lifted the Brewers into the lead.

The victory went to Jim Colborn, who relieved after Bill Parsons had walked the first three Oakland batters.

Colborn nearly got out of that jam, striking out fearsome Reggie Jackson and getting Sal Bando on a pop foul before Gene Tenace walked on a 3-2 count to force in Oakland's first run.

Oakland got another on Tenace's sixth home run of the year in the third, but the Brewers got three back in their half after filling the bases on a single by Garcia and two walks.

Briggs cleared them with a drive to left center that barely eluded Bill North, who missed a diving catch by what he estimated to be five inches.

"I had a good jump on the ball and I really thought I'd catch it," North said. "It would have been an out if the wind hadn't blown the ball away from me."

"When I hit it, I didn't see anyone out there but then I looked up and saw the ball hanging," Briggs said. "It looked like he just missed what would have been one heck of a catch. But I'm glad he missed it."

Colborn finished with a five-hitter and wouldn't have needed Briggs' homer if a mental error by first baseman George Scott hadn't contributed to an Oakland run in the seventh.

Bert Campaneris opened the inning with a single, stole second and continued to third on a throwing error by catcher Darrell Porter. Campaneris at first held third on Joe Rudi's short fly to right, then raced home when Scott cut off the throw to the plate and instead threw to second to double North, who had been on first with a walk.

'Bad bounce' gives Canadiens 2nd win

MONTREAL (AP) — "It was a bad bounce for them but a good one for us," said Frank Mahovlich, who was the middleman on the key play Tuesday night which lifted the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-1 victory over the battered Chicago Black Hawks.

The triumph gave the high flying Canadiens a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series. The Canadiens could lock up the series with two more decisions in Chicago Thursday night and Sunday afternoon.

Stan Mikita, the Hawks' star center, missed Tuesday's game because of a painful ripped middle finger on the right hand suffered in the third period of Sunday's game and defenseman Doug Jarrett was knocked out of action in the first period Tuesday night when he injured his rib cage.

gotten the lead, I think they would have been capable of shutting us out."

Winnipeg hopes to recapture its composure when it comes home tonight and even its World Hockey Association championship series against New England.

"What we need is one win to get our feet planted," said Winnipeg forward Garth Rizzuto.

"A few of the guys aren't confident we can beat the Whalers and that's the wrong attitude to take into this thing. We have to be confident of beating these guys."

The Jets started poorly, losing the opening game of their final best-of-seven series, 7-2 on Sunday. Both coaches agreed that it was a mistake for Winnipeg to try skating with the Whalers.

Winnipeg hosts tonight and Thursday before the series shifts back to Boston on Saturday.

Los Angeles Lakers' Gail Goodrich (25) battles for ball with New York Knicks' Dean Meminger, left, and Bill Bradley, and then ends up with Meminger on top of him.

Routed 8-3 in Sunday's opener, the Hawks tried a comeback in the second game when they tied the count 1-1 early in the second period on a goal by Cliff Koroll.

Five minutes later, at 12:03, came what Canadian coach Scotty Bowman called "the important goal." A flying puck hit the sideboards in the Chicago zone and took a tricky bounce over defenseman Bill White's stick.

Mahovlich, who was to score the game's final goal into an empty net at 19:26 of the third period, grabbed the puck and passed to Yvan Cournoyer, who hammered it past Tony Esposito for what proved to be the winning goal.

"That was the important goal," said Bowman, "because I was afraid it might have been a different story if they had taken the lead. Right after they tied the score, they had their best skating shift. If they had

99th Derby: fastest, richest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Top speed horses like Sheeky Greene and Royal and Regal and quality finishers such as Secretariat and Sham are expected to make the 99th Kentucky Derby one of the fastest.

"The way everybody is working, the race will be run in close to two minutes," Lucien Laurin, trainer of favored Secretariat said Tuesday.

The Derby and Churchill Downs track record for 1 1/4 miles is 2:00 by Northern Dancer in 1964.

A field of fifteen 3-year-olds was shaping up and if that many start, Saturday's Derby would be the richest, with $148,300 to the winner.

Post time is 4:40 p.m., CDT, with television coverage from 4 p.m.-5 p.m. and radio coverage from 4:25-4:44 p.m., both by CBS.

It's doubtful if any Derby starters will come out of the Derby Trial, which Settecento won Tuesday by 1 1/4 lengths over favored Mr. Prospector, with I'm Guaranteed third in a field of five. Owner Martin Wygod said he would take 24 hours to decide if Settecento, ridden by Larry Adams would run in the Derby.

"With so much speed you don't know what's going to happen," said Laurin. "One of the speed horses might forget to stop."

Carter Thornton, trainer of stretch-running Restless Jet, concurred:

"I just hope one of those speed horses don't just keep going. It happened with Jet 19-10."

In 1947 Jet Pilot broke on the lead and stayed there instead of fading to win by a head over the fast-finishing Phalanx.

Besides Sheeky Greene and Royal and Regal, other front runners expected in the Derby field were Knightly Dawn and Angle Light.

Knightly Dawn will run as part of a Sigmund Sonne-

Warwick, Lee are free agents

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Middle linebacker Lonnie Warwick and quarterback Bob Lee are free to negotiate contracts with any National Football League team.

The two veterans officially became free agents Tuesday after playing out their options in the 1972 season without signed contracts.

The Vikings cannot trade either Lee, a four-year veteran, or Warwick, an eight-year man, without their approval. If other teams do sign them, the Vikings would receive suitable compensation.

For example, the Vikings received a player and a first-round draft choice when quarterback Joe Kapp agreed to play for the then Boston Patriots.

Warwick reportedly is seeking a two-to-three-year contract and more money. Lee is interested in playing as a No. 1 quarterback.

With Fran Tarkenton established as the Viking quarterback, Lee appears headed for another role as a backup man unless he can make a deal with another team.

"I really just want a chance to play," Lee says. "If you get that, everything else comes with it."

Warwick has been bothered most of the last two seasons by knee injuries.

Jim Finks, Viking general manager, has said he is not optimistic that the two will be with the team next season but would welcome them if they agreed to sign new contracts.

Only players under contract or players who have not yet played out their options are permitted to start training camp. The Vikings open training in late July for their Aug. 11 exhibition opener at Metropolitan Stadium against Pittsburgh.

WSC thinclads 8th in relays, P.V. mark set

DECORAH, Iowa — Winona State's track team could do no better than eighth place in the rain-soaked Norsemen Relays held here at Luther College Tuesday afternoon despite a school record performance by Bill Bushlack.

Bushlack, a freshman from Austin, Pa., cleared 13 feet in the pole vault, but the jump was only good for fifth place to indicate the caliber of competition. The Warriors were up against.

Mike O'Connell of Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., won the event by going over at 14-7. The old Winona State record was 12-6, which Bushlack equaled earlier this season.

Augustana took the team title Tuesday by compiling a total of 106 points, host Luther was second with 80, then came Loras College with 71, Coe College with 34, Wartburg with 28, Cornell with 24, Dubuque with 17, Winona with seven and Upper Iowa with two.

After qualifying for the NATA meet in the 3,000-meter steeplechase last season, Bob Brewington has to settle for fourth place in the same event with a time of 10:02. The steady rain and muddy track were partially accountable for Brewington's time, which was 30 seconds off his best career effort.

Glen Snesrud and Mark Smith each won their respective heats in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, but neither of their times was fast enough to place.

Winona's two-mile relay unit of Al Petri, Larry Mullenberg, Brewington and Gary Mueller, finished fourth with a time of 8:08, while Luther won the event with a 7:49 clocking. Mueller's time for his 880-yard leg was a fast 1:58.

Petri, Snesrud, Brewington and Mullenberg combined for a time of 11:02 in the distance medley relay which was also good for fourth place.

The Warriors will be in St. Paul Saturday to compete in the 21-team Macalester Invitational.

Three capture league titles

Yellow Cab's fivesome monopolized team honors in the National League at the Westgate Bowl this past season.

In addition to winning the league championship, Yellow Cab compiled the highest team series in the loop all season and had the top team game and series in the league tournament. Their top series output of the season was 2,960 while they recorded scores of 1,058 and 2,898 on tournament night.

The Wiloka Tavern combined for the high team game of the season, a 1,058 count.

Individual awards for the season went to Gene Lovas for the high season average (175), Larry Kendrick and Chuck Peterson for the high scratch series (612), Gary Groth for the high series with handicap (678) and the most improved bowler (11-pin increase in average) and Jim Kessler for the highest scratch game (258).

Only a month away

MEMBERS OF THE Tri-State Hunting Dog Association no doubt have a big circle marking off the first weekend in June on their calendar. That's when the annual licensed field trial will be run this year.

Final plans for the licensed trial are taking shape now and the finishing touches will be added Thursday night at 7:30 when the TSHDA meets in the Spanish Department of St. Mary's College.

This is one of the biggest events of the year for the club and all members are urged to be on hand for this month's meeting to see that everything runs smoothly next month.

WWF annual convention slated

THE WISCONSIN WILDLIFE Federation will be holding its annual convention Saturday in Stevens Point.

Heading the list of visiting dignitaries is L. P. Voigt, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources; John Beale, deputy secretary of the DNR; State Attorney General Robert Warren, Charles Griffith, regional representative of the National Wildlife Federation; and William Petersburg, member of the state conservation congress and national iron shot committee.

This will be the first convention under the direction of newly-appointed head Dennis Madigan.

Saturday's agenda includes the usual business meeting and reading of WWF resolutions as well as a progress report on the new monthly publication of the Wisconsin Federation . . . Wisconsin Federation . . . edited by Executive Director Madigan.

Registration will begin at 8:30 Saturday morning with the day's activities scheduled to run to 4:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sentry Insurance building.

At 6:30 p.m. the gathering will shift to Whiting Hall, just across the street, for the annual banquet.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in attending and reservations may be made by contacting Les Woerpel, Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, 2125 Lincoln Ave., Stevens Point, Wis. 54481.

To ban steel-jawed traps

A BILL WHICH THE Animal Protection Institute believes "could save millions of wild, fur-bearing animals from countless hours of torture in steel-jawed, leghold traps" has been introduced in Congress.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Birch Bayh, Indiana, (S.B. 1636) would outlaw the use of these steel-jawed traps.

The Institute is looking for public support for this bill, but we doubt if it will find any here . . . for the sake of those of you that trap, it had better not.

Bayh's bill would make it illegal to use any trap other than one which, "painlessly captures or instantly kills" animals or birds on public lands. If passed, the bill would go into effect Jan. 1, 1974.

One section of the bill is aimed at stopping commercial trapping with the common steel-jawed traps. It would prohibit shipment in interstate commerce of any animal pelt or skin taken with a trap not approved by the other portions of the bill.

In another section of the bill, the Secretary of the Interior is given the power to decide which traps meet the standards and which are illegal under the proposal. If the law is enacted, a seven-man advisory panel would be set up to aid the secretary in making this choice and only instant killing or live traps would be acceptable.

Bolton P. Mouras, president of the Institute, says, "Many animals caught in these traps (steel-jawed) are of no value to the trapper and are discarded as 'trash' catches. In one survey we found that out of every four animals caught only one had a salable pelt. This is a tremendous waste of wildlife."

Bayh's bill would seriously limit -- if not completely halt -- commercial and recreational trapping as we know it.

The gentlemen in Washington, D.C. are being bombarded by groups like this institute in efforts to get the traps banned and these groups are obviously making headway. It's about time the other side is heard. Now, before it's too late.

French River off-limits

THE WORD FROM the north is that those silvery little fish that attract hundreds of anglers to the big lake's shores each spring are on the move . . . that's right, the smelt are running.

If you're planning a trek to the north shore or the Duluth area, make sure you don't plan to do any fishing in the French River from new Highway 61 to Lake Superior.

This stretch of river, at best a short one, is off-limits to both smelters and conventional fishermen.

The mouth of the river has been closed to fishing to protect the small Donahood and Kumbakon trout which were planted in the stream last fall and that are still there in large numbers.

These hybrid rainbows are about the size of smelt and could easily be mistaken for the little critters.

The stream is posted where it is off-limits, so there should be no problem, but it's nice to know before making plans.

King said the ideal solution would "be if we had a separate facility. I'm absolutely convinced of that now. I think the Vikings would be satisfied with additional seating at the Met as a short-term solution."

"Ultimately, I think they would look at a time when they could have a dome and that's understandable. The two sports are not compatible. It's difficult to play football on a baseball field...the seating arrangements are different."

"We want to help in whatever way we can but we have to have some indication from the Vikings. The next move is up to them. They have to decide what they want to do. We'll pick up the parts from there."

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks' rebuilding efforts and their drafting track record suffered Tuesday night when they lost Swen Nater to the American Basketball Association.

The ABA's Virginia Squires announced a multi-year contract had been signed by Nater, who had been the Bucks' No. 1 choice in the National Basketball Association draft a week earlier.

"I'm shocked," said Coach Larry Costello, who had been determined to make the No. 1 pick pay off at some position following his Bucks' upset elimination by Golden State in the NBA playoffs.

Loss of the 6-foot-11, 230-pound Nater, backup to All-American Bill Walton at UCLA the last two seasons, left the Bucks with only three players on their roster who have been obtained through the draft since 1969.

They are Russell Lee, Chuck Terry and Mickey Davis, drafted on the first, second and seventh rounds, respectively, last year.

Since their 1969 bonanza when they landed Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bob Dandridge, the Bucks have been all but shut out at the drafting table.

Their top pick in 1970, Gary Freeman, lasted only one season in the NBA and Collis Jones, their No. 1 pick in 1971, signed with the ABA.

Milwaukee's choices on the second and third rounds of this year's draft had been traded in deals which brought Wali Jones, waived last January, and Curtis Perry.

Nater was signed in Los Angeles by Squires Coach Al Bianchi Tuesday, the same day Bucks General Manager Wayne Embury announced he planned to fly there to confer with Na-ter.

Nater said earlier Tuesday he had been considering a "tempting offer" from the Squires and "wasn't flattered" about having been drafted by the Bucks on the 16th turn of the first round.

"I was worried," he said. "The only thing I thought about was a trade. The Bucks needed a forward and I couldn't see them taking me as a forward."

Rain spoils local sports

Alas! It seems spring sports coaches have been spending more time postponing games and meetings than they have scheduling them this season.

Max Molock, St. Mary's baseball coach, announced today that a Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference double-header with Hamline University slated for this afternoon in St. Paul has been postponed until May 10.

The Redmen are scheduled to host Dubuque University in a twin bill Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. provided the field at Terrace Heights is in suitable playing condition.

Winona High was just an inning and one-half away from a victory over Rochester John Marshall Monday afternoon, but with the Winhawks leading 3-0 in the top of the fourth inning, the rain forced cancellation of the game. The contest will be made up, from scratch, on May 22 in Winona.

Coach Jerry Raddatz' squad is slated to play in Albert Lea Thursday as are the golf and tennis teams. The Winhawks' track team will be in Rochester for a dual meet with Mayo.

There will be a girls' quadrangular track meet at Jefferson Stadium Thursday with Winona: Lake City, Zumbrota and St. Charles beginning at 4:30 p.m., and Saturday Winona will host the Big Nine Conference Girls' Swimming Meet.

Cotter High's game with La Crosse Logan Thursday will be played at 7 p.m. at Copeland Park in La Crosse.

Mystery golf tourney set at Westfield

The Sunrises Kiwanis will be sponsoring a Mystery Golf Tournament at the Westfield Golf Course for the remainder of this week and next week.

The mystery aspect will be centered around which holes will count towards the tournament trophies. Each entrant will play 18 holes, but only nine holes will be scored for prizes. Five holes will be drawn from the first nine and four from the second nine.

The tournament is open to everyone, and entry fees should be paid at the Westfield Pro Shop. Any profits accumulated from the tourney will be used by the Kiwanis for the Special Olympics Program.

Mayor Norman Indall, a member of the Sunrises Kiwanis, will present a Mayor's Trophy for the low-scoring male and female contestants in the tournament.

GAL.

This week only!

LUCITE House Paint lets you...

- SKIP the extra work of priming, because the primer's right in the paint.
- SKIP tiresome "brush drag". It flows on effortlessly and it dries in only thirty minutes.
- SKIP messy clean-up. Simply rinse your brushes in soap and water.
- SKIP frequent repainting. Its patented latex composition resists blistering, peeling and weathering longer than ever before and it's yours in a full range of colors or white!

LUCITE Wall Paint lets you...

- SKIP the wipe-up. It doesn't drip, run or dribble like ordinary paints.
- SKIP the usual stirring and thinning. Just lift the lid and paint away.
- SKIP annoying time delays. It dries to a fresh, lovely finish in only thirty minutes.
- SKIP troublesome tool clean-up. It's done in a jiffy with just soap and water.

And it's yours in the colors top decorators picked for 1968.

During City Wide Sale Days or anytime, stop in and see some of the most beautiful engagement and wedding rings there are. . .

Orange Blossom
Symbol of a Dream

Reminisce

The pattern of this ring dates to the Middle Ages where it was known as "the ceremonial ring."
The symbols used then are as appropriate today as they were in the year 1320.

Joined Hearts:
two mortal souls in love.
Clasped Hands:
togetherness for a lifetime.
Scriptures: wisdom of the ages for guidance.
Horn of Plenty:
fulfillment and happiness.
Orange Blossoms:
symbols of the dream you share.
Reminisce. A ring as eternal as time.
As young as your dream.

INTERNATIONAL 73 SCOUT®

Sets The Scene For Outdoor Living.

New dash-mounted control lets you switch to 4-wheel-drive as easily as turning on the headlights.

- More places to go! Rugged trails, paved streets, far-out fields. Travel them all with a four-wheel-drive Scout! Go anywhere the fun is!
- More individuality! Want 4-on-the-floor, buckets, stereo, air conditioning, six or V-8? Are you up to choosing from three different interiors?

A Scout pays off in fun and practicality. It's the weekday/weekend wagon. A lean, easy-parking compact for Mom's in-town maneuvers—a muscle machine for those weekend jaunts into sportsman's country. Have you driven Scout with the new 345-cube V-8? Let's have a test-drive!
